"JOHN DOE" MYSTERY IN THE SIEGEL CASE

SEEK NEW SIEGEL WITNESS

Mrs. Marie Vaughan Siegel will positively be a witness when the Suffolk Grand Jury on Monday takes up its investigation of the Siegel failures here. This word at the Court House today, coupled with a strong rumor that John Doe indictments would be sought against a man not yet named in the Siegel case, made twin sensations in the Siegel investigations.

The full list of witnesses for the first day includes the following names:

Mrs. Siegel.
Mrs. Dolly Eddy-Brown—the woman Mrs. Siegel names in her divorce suit.
Joseph Siegel, Henry Siegel's nephew and resident manager of former Siegel Boston store.
James W. Hall, who has supervised the examination of the Siegel books here for Mr. Pelletier.
James E. Lynch, chief clerk at the Siegel bank here.
John F. Toland, assistant clerk at the bank.
John L. Kling, a bank employe.
Mary J. Fitzgerald, a bank employe.
Mary A. Doyle, a bank employe.
Police Inspector Silas F. Waite.
Police Lieutenant John J. Rooney.

The hearing before the Grand Jury is expected to last ten days, and scores of witnesses will be summoned.

Mrs. Siegel is today at Lakewood, N. J., suffering a slight indisposition, and this gave rise to a rumor she would not be able to come to Boston to testify.

Mrs. Siegel is expected to make startling charges regarding her husband and Mrs. Eddy-Brown.

Mrs. Siegel has brought suit in the Supreme Court to have set aside certain deeds to the Siegel mansion in Mamaroneck, N. Y., and also to the property on East Eighty-second street, alleging that she was illegally and fraudulently influenced by her husband to sign away her dower rights.

The trustees of the Henry Siegel Company of Milton today mailed to creditors of the company checks for a 10 per cent. dividend on their claims. They have already sent to the New oYrk trustees for the bank depositors in settlment of inter-company claims $132,500. They still have on hand $229,876, will bills receivable totalling $254,565. It is expected a further 20 per cent. dividend can be paid, bringing the total dividend to 30 per cent.

Wilson on Links; McAdoo Surprised Party at Breakfast

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Va., April 11.—Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, fiance of Miss Eleanor Wilson, arrived here early today from Washington and joined the family of President Wilson for the Easter holiday. Mr. McAdoo's early arrival took his friends by surprise, for he was not expected until later. Mr. McAdoo was in excellent spirits. "I feel like setting some new mountain climbing records," he declared, as he looked out upon the wooded heights from the hotel veranda. He joined Miss Wilson at breakfast, and later they strolled through the hotel, while crowds of society people from New York, Washington, Philadelphia and other cities, who came here for Easter Sunday, made no effort to hide their eager glances.

President Wilson hurried to the golf links after he had his breakfast, declaring that the keen mountain air was doing him a world of good. He said his program for the day's recreation would be the same as that of yesterday, which included a long ride in the afternoon. Mrs. Wilson has also begun to show the benefits of fresh, crisp air and the absence of White House duties. She will probably remain here for several weeks, although President Wilson will return to Washington on Monday. According to his present plans he will return about Thursday of next week to spend the weekend.

Schools and Stores to Close for Draper

Every school, factory and place of business in Hopedale and Milford, will close on Monday to do honor to former Governor Eben Sumner Draper, when his body is brought home for burial.

Services will be held in Kings' Chapel, Boston, at noon; then on a special train the body will go to Hopedale, and in the beautiful Hopedale Memorial Unitarian Church, erected by Mr. Draper and his brother George in honor of their parents, the last services will be held. The Rev. Fred R. Lewis will officiate. The body will be laid in the Draper tomb in Hopedale Cemetery.

Killed Man Divided His Roll with Girl

NEW YORK, April 11.—After an all night "third degree" inquisition at the hands of the police, William Fleck, aged twenty-one, confessed that he shot and killed Giuseppe Marino for his "roll" of $25 and then divided the money with a girl who inspired the crime. Fleck would not tell the girl's name, but said he had given her $10.

ARNOLD MYSTERY DEEPENS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 11.—District Attorney Jackson created a sensation here at noon today when he issued a remarkable statement declaring that Dorothy Arnold is now in her father's home in New York in a weakened condition and mentally unbalanced.

Jackson declares that on strongest kind of evidence he knows she returned to her home four months ago, and that her parents are doing all they can to keep the matter quiet.

The District Attorney said that the Arnold girl came to Pittsburgh immediately after her disappearance and was an inmate of the "House of Mystery."

As the result of an unprofessional operation it is said her mind was weakened, and when she left the maternity home she wandered about the country for five years.

Four months ago, Jackson said, the girls was found near New York and taken to her home by friends.

70 Indictments by Grand Jury

The Suffolk County Grand Jury today reported seventy indictments and twenty-three no bills, the largest number of cases considered by any Grand Jury for three years.

Mary McGowan was indicted for arson. She is charged with setting alight a six-family house on Nawn street, February 24, after a quarrel with her sister, who lived in the house.

Six men are indicted for an alleged assault on Joseph E. Nutter, clerk of an Atlantic avenue boarding house. They are also charged with robbery. The men, said to be members of the "Mohawk Gang," are Angus Morrison, James Chestnut, Frank Adams, William McVicker, Patrick Morgan and Alfred Pitzold.

New Zealand Leads in Saving Babies

WASHINGTON, April 11.—What New Zealand has done in reducing the infant mortality rate was brought to the attention of Secretary of Labor Wilson today in a letter by Miss Julia C. Lathrop, head of the Federal Children's Bureau, with a view to stimulating interest in the work of baby saving in the United States.

According to Miss Lathrop, New Zealand has the lowest infant mortality rate of any country in the world, and this has been brought about mainly through the efforts of the New Zealand Society for the Health of Women and Children.

Montreal Surgeon Heads Association

NEW YORK, April 11.—Dr. George Armstrong of Montreal was today elected president of the American Surgical Association, and Dr. Lewis S. Pilcher of Brooklyn and Dr. Frank E. French Girl Cites Caillaux as She Shoots Down Sister

NANTES, France, April 11.—A sensational shooting affair in which a young society woman was probably mortally wounded by her sister, caused tremendous excitement today.

Mlle. Genevieve De La Fleuraye of the Rochegu yon at Savenierres was shot five times by her sister Mlle. Marie De La Fleuraye. The tragedy occurred in the street when the sisters chanced to meet. After upbraiding her sister for causing discord in the family, Mlle Marie suddenly drew a revolver and began firing at her sister.

At the police station Mlle. Marie who is thirty years old made references to the recent killing of Editor Calmette by Mme. Caillaux in Paris and the authorities believe that she was influenced by that tragedy.

COUNSEL SURE OF REPRIEVE

NEW YORK, April 11.—District Attorney Whitman faced attorneys representing the four condemned gunmen before Judge Goff today in a legal battle, where four lives hang in the balance. On every hand it was considered certain that this last dramatic fight for the doomed men would mean a reprieve and a new lease of life for them. Counsel for the condemned men were sure of reprieve.

The District Attorney rushed back from Chicago at word of Judge Goff's action in ordering a hearing today. He arrived not three hours before the hearing commenced; hurried to his office and was the centre of a maelstrom of activity. He will fight with the utmost determination against any plea for a new trial of the four men.

HEARING MAY TAKE ALL DAY.

Judge Goff called the hearing as the result of the presentation of new affidavits tending to show the innocence of the condemned men. District Attorney Whitman is directed to "show cause why a new trial should not be granted." It was generally admitted today that there is little possibility of the hearing being completed before late tonight. In that case it would go over till next week, and Mr. Whitman himself would probably join in asking Governor Glynn to grant a reprieve for the four men.

The gunmen have pleaded for a reprieve of a week, a day or even an hour. Their execution is set for between 5 and 6 o'clock Monday morning unless Governor Glynn intervenes. Therefore, if the hearing today is at all extended, a reprieve will be necessary.

WILL FIGHT ALIBI CLAIM.

Mr. Whitman, according to statements made at his offices today, will meet the new affidavits in the case by presenting documents and records held in reserve at the time of the trial. These documents, it is asserted, contain affidavits destroying "Dago Frank's" alleged alibi, and another affidavit which charges attempts to procure false testimony at the time of the trial.

Should Judge Goff, after hearing all the evidence, grant a new trial, his action would act as an indefinite stay of execution in the case.

Then the four gunmen would certainly not be brought to trial till after Lieutenant Becker has again faced a jury.

And that is all the gunmen asks, that they be given the benefit of any new evidence adduced in the Becker case.

GUNMEN SEND LAST PLEA TO GOVERNOR

trial. They say they can prove Vallon and Webber, and not themselves, were the real murderers.

The prisoners lounged in the death house at Sing Sing wept tears of joy when Warden Clancy told them the hearing before Judge Goff today may result in a reprieve. The news came as a great shock to the condemned men, who had practically given up hope.

It was several minutes before they could grasp the meaning of the situation. When the truth dawned on them they danced about their cells like children and tears rolled down their cheeks. The same thing, they argued for had happened—they had been given another chance to prove their innocence.

The new evidence offered by Attorney Wahle was contained in affidavits sworn to by William B. Burwell, a professional billiard player of Waterbury, Ct., and Karl Dresner, a bartender of New York. The signer of the principal affidavit is the man whom he can identify and who is not one of the three who sat in the fleeing party whose shots killed Rosenthal in front of the Hotel Metropole. The others are said to be Sam Schepps, "Bridgie" Webber and Harry Vallon, the informers, and not the murderers, as contained in the automobile that raced away from the scene of the crime.

In his affidavit Burwell declares that on the night Rosenthal was shot, shortly before 1 a. m., he, with two actor friends named Manning and Flynn, left the pool room over Dowling's cafe on Times square and crossed the square, leaving his friends near the entrance while he recrossed forty-third street diagonally, passing the door of what was likely the Cadillac Hotel, next to the Metropole.

DESCRIBES SHOOTING.

"Just as I passed the door a man not five feet away from me raised his arm," his affidavit continued. "There were two flashes, two reports and the man with the revolver ran across the street, toward the stage door of the Cohan Theatre.

"Right in front of that door a gray touring car was standing. Several men were in it. As the man who had fired the first two shots fled for the automobile there were two or three more reports and then the man who had come from the Hotel Metropole dropped to the sidewalk.

"I cannot say whether the last shots came from men standing in the street or men in the automobile. Immediately after the shots were fired the machine started with a jerk and dashed through Forty-third street in the direction of Sixth avenue."

In the excitement that followed the shooting, Burwell said he saw a policeman coming his way, determined it was best not to get mixed up in the affair, returned to Dowling's cafe, changed his mind about staying over night in a New York hotel, and left for Bridgeport on the first train he could get.

TELLS STORY TO WAHLE.

He has been in New York no more than was absolutely necessary since that time, he declared. However, he made a memorandum a few days after Rosenthal was killed of everything he had seen, and the memorandum book in which he entered his notes is now in the possession of a friend, Mrs. Annie Brown.

Burwell adds that he had resolved never to reveal what he knew, but when he learned that Governor Glynn had refused to grant the gunmen a reprieve, he determined to tell his story. He communicated with a lawyer in Poughkeepsie and was advised to see the gunmen's counsel before it was too late. He came to New York and as soon as he could get in touch with C. F. G. Wahle, the gunmen's counsel, told him his story.

INNOCENT, SAYS "LEFTY" AS HE PENS APPEAL TO GLYNN

OSSINING, N. Y., April 11.—"Lefty Louie" finished a last appeal to Governor Glynn at midnight. The letter was mailed immediately by Warden Clancy. It follows, as Lefty Louie wrote it:

Honorable Martin H. Glynn, Governor of the State of New York:

Your Excellency—I write this in behalf of Harry Rosenthal, Jacob Seidenscher, Harry Horowitz and myself.

"I wish your excellency would to beg your pardon for taking the liberty in making our last appeal to you to be the only power on earth, but God's earth, to still listen to our last plea which we beg and pray that you will still grant.

ASSERTS INNOCENCE.

"It is 10:30 p. m. and we just got through saying our prayers to Almighty God. I feel it is the inspiration of Almighty God that made the boys to make our last appeal as we got through.

"We read of your excellency's statement stating that nothing could be developed on the second trial of Becker that could in any way change the result in this case. We know at that trial that we could prove that Vallon and Webber fired the shots that killed Herman Rosenthal and not the boys. We realize deeply, your honor, that there has been enough time to go before the public, but we are not for a moment thought that it would ever go so far as the trial of Becker or hearts that our innocence would be proved.

"Your excellency, are you going to send us boys to our death this Monday morning or can you consider as follows: It is stated that the Becker case is an entirely different issue from ours.

"In the opening address Assistant District Attorney Perlman confessed immediately with Becker and Your Honor can see we were convicted as soon as Becker was convicted. We went into that court room convicted men—convicted by the whole world at that time.

NEVER SAW ROSENTHAL.

"In your letters that the Honorable Judge Goff wrote to Your Excellency, Judge Goff and the District Attorney in his opening address to the jury:

"Those sworn on the stand have never wanted Rosenthal killed, it was gambling Vallon, Webber and Schepps swore to. Now, then, who did want the man killed, I know we never knew or saw in our lives! Now there are four other witnesses, they state, saw me at the scene of the shooting crime.

No. 1—Lulian says he was at the scene of the crime. He identified Harry Frank and myself. He put it, 'I appeal to you, is the Becker option he is unworthy of belief and has a motive—he was released from a Jersey prison which gave him his freedom. Wasn't it the same in our case?

"This same Lulian at the Becker trial said he knew us well by our names and he was asked to mention our names. He stated 'Whitey Lewis,' 'Gyp the Blood' and 'Lefty Louie.' Then we were called and lined up in front of him and when he was asked to mention our names he answered:

"As to the names, I get mixed up.

"Yet he said he knew us well by our names for a year and a half. Two of his own nieces and brother testified for four days. But at the time he said he was on Forty-third street he was at their home sixteen miles away.

"No 2—William Shapiro who was indicted with us is in the state prison with us for a long while. He could not identify any of us as the men who rode in the car. Shapiro was brought in to identify Jacob Seidenshner and Frank Cirofici, in the Night Court in Police Commissioner Dougherty and Mr. Whitman, Dougherty ordering Shapiro to go and identify them and Shapiro said to 'Them are not the men.'

ALL SIGN APPEAL.

"No 3—Stadzik, at the Becker trial identified Seidenshner and said he had seen him with an automatic pistol forty-five feet away. At our trial he testified differ.

No. 4—The last witness was a waiter named Goldstein. Under oath in the coroner's court he said he saw Webber coming away and Jack Sullivan bending over the body. Then he was asked could he identify anybody else and he answered, 'No, not in their faces.'

"Your Excellency, could you send us to our death on such evidence?

"If you don't want to spare our innocent lives, then do it for the sake of our dear parents, wives and all who are dear to us. Your Excellency, we beg and pray that you will still grant this plea in the name of Almighty God and justice.

"Your humble servants,

"JOHN RODENBERG,
"HARRY HOROWITZ,
"JACOB SEIDENSHNER,
"FRANK CIROFICI."

FIND NEW WITNESS FOR GUNMEN HOLDS LONG POLICE RECORD

WATERBURY, Ct., April 11.—William E. Burwell, who has made an affidavit that he witnessed the Rosenthal shooting in New York, has not been here for the last few weeks, the police say. He is known locally as a pool and billiard expert.

Burwell has a long police record. He has been arrested six times at least, the police say, for various minor crimes, including theft, shoplifting, assault, breach of the peace and non-support. He spent a term in jail for the latter offence in February, 1912.

He has been arrested in New Haven, Meriden, Bridgeport and Ansonia, as well as in this city.

GLYNN REMAINS FIRM IN REJECTING PLEAS FOR CONDEMNED MEN

ALBANY, N. Y., April 11.—A memorandum of the cases of the four gunmen setting forth, in the main, a reputed alibi for "Dago Frank" Cirofici, forwarded to Governor Glynn by C. G. F. Wahle, failed to change the executive's position on his refusal to grant them a reprieve.

"I have received and read your supplemental application in the case of your clients," the Governor telegraphed Wahle. "I find nothing new therein I had not previously considered and nothing to justify a change of my decision."

The Governor heard a personal appeal for the gunmen from Mrs. William Shapiro of Newburg, the wife of an attorney for the convicted men, who was too ill to appear in person. She was accompanied to Albany by the mother of "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, but the executive remained firm in his decision not to talk with any relatives of the condemned men and saw Mrs. Shapiro alone.

"LAXITY OF POLICE PERMITS GUNMEN TO EXIST," SAYS WHITMAN

CHICAGO, April 11.—Honor among thieves is a paying fiction, according to District Attorney Charles S. Whitman of New York, who was in Chicago today. Speaking of his personal experience with gunmen, Whitman said the existence of such gangs was due to the laxity of the police.

"Gangs never exist through growth of gangs," said Whitman. "Gunmen were encouraged and permitted to exist because of the difficulty in pinning crime home to any individual. The only aid I received as a prosecutor in breaking up gangs in New York, was from the men themselves. Honor among thieves is purely fiction. It was only when the men squealed on each other that we got the right kind of evidence."

MARGARET MOORE, South Boston girl among those forced to flee early morning fire in C street dwelling.

19 FLEE FIRE IN SOUTH BOSTON

Five mothers and their fourteen children, in various stages of undress were driven out by smoke which curled through the three-story, double tenement house at No. 369 C street, South Boston, when fire started in the walling of the second story at 7:15 today.

The fugitives were: top floor, Mrs. Bridget Conley and Mary and Harry Conley; Mrs. Catherine Mitchell and Frank, Elizabeth, Alfred and John Mitchell; second floor, Mrs. Mary Casey and William and John Casey; Mrs. Hannah Sullivan and Thomas and George Sullivan; ground floor, Mrs. King and four children, and Margaret Moore, a little girl.

In the first-floor rear live William Breiden and his daughter. After the fire was all out Breiden found the children peacefully asleep, unaware of fire or smoke.

About $300 damage was done to the building, which is owned by James McKenna of City Point.

South End Drug Pedlers Sentenced

As the result of complaints which have been received by Captain Driscoll of Station 5 that pedlers of drugs have been making their headquarters in a house on Columbus avenue, Sergeants Irwin, Burley and Mullen of that station raided the premises at No. 620 Columbus avenue and arrested William A. Simpson, John Edwards and Edward Quinn, whom they later examined in the city police court on a charge of having morphine and cocaine in their possession. Judge Murray found each of the men guilty and sentenced Simpson and Edwards to three months in jail, while Quinn was sent to the House of Correction for a like term.

Labor Men Protest Wood to Governor

Governor Walsh received a call from Stephen M. Walsh and Messrs. Trace and Robinson of the Lynn Boot and Shoe Workers, who came to protest against the reappointment of Charles G. Wood of New Bedford, who represents the employers of labor on the board. They stated that on the matter of a recent labor difficulty in Lynn that Mr. Wood was unfair to labor.

Brooks Drops Dead Viewing New Home

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 11.—While inspecting a mansion he expected to occupy next month at Corapolis Heights, Joseph Judson Brooks, general counsel of the Pennsylvania company, operating the railroad lines west of Pittsburgh, dropped dead.

Two Take Own Lives in Maine Asylum

AUGUSTA, Me., April 11.—Two patients at the State Hospital for the insane committed suicide. Henry Brackett of Biddeford escaped the guards and threw himself into the Kennebec river, and Gerald Lord of Fryeburg hanged herself by means of a pillow case in her room.

U. S. DEMANDS APOLOGY AND SALUTE TO FLAG

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Rear-Admiral Mayo, commander of the American squadron at Tampico, has demanded of General Zaragoza, the Mexican Federal commander, an immediate apology and salute to the American flag within twenty-four hours because the Federals arrested a party of American marines and paraded them through the streets of Tampico.

A dispatch was received yesterday from Admiral Fletcher reporting the state demand, but Secretary Daniels thought it proper that the President should see it before it was published. He said today:

"We have not heard anything since the first dispatch and do not know whether the apology was made. It may be that because President Huerta issued a practical apology at Mexico City last night Admiral Mayo considers it best to let the matter rest for the present."

INQUIRY ORDERED.

From Mexico City comes the report that General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of War, has ordered General Zaragoza to investigate the affair thoroughly.

Colonel Hinojosa, who is said to have made the demand, has been suspended from duty, and if events warrant will be court-martialled.

Official advices from Torreon announce that the united Federal army of 5,000 men has been routed from the city by the Constitutionalist forces led by General Villa in person and are fighting for their lives at Parras today.

The dispatch says that until the arrival of General Villa with 5,000 troops to help Generals Benavides and Hernandez the Federals looked certain victors at San Pedro. The Constitutionalists, wearied by three days of desperate fighting, were preparing to withdraw when Villa reached the scene with his veterans and twenty guns. Within two hours Villa had snatched victory from what looked to be almost certain defeat, and the Federals were in full retreat.

LOSSES TOTAL 1,500.

Losses on both sides were heavy, couriers estimating that more than 1,500 were killed and wounded.

Despite these dispatches, Mexico City again announces a Federal victory over Villa's troops. The War Department today says the forces of Generals Velasco, Maass, De Moure and Hidalgo have compelled Villa up in Torreon, and that Federal artillery is being mounted on one surrounding hills to bombard the city.

Vera Cruz reports that the Mexican gunboat Bravo arrived at Tampico today with ammunition and reinforcements, and that the rebels have been forced to withdraw after attacking the city for two days.

Reserve Committee Defends Bank Sites

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Federal Reserve Bank Organization Committee has issued a statement defending its choice of Reserve Bank cities and definition of reserve districts. The committee called attention to the fact that since thirty-seven cities were applicants and only twelve named, twenty-five had to be disappointed.

Two Unknown Men Killed by Trains

Two unknown men, killed by trains, await identification at the morgue today. One was found near the Clarendon Hill station. He was twenty-five, carried a gold watch, and had $9.50 in his pockets. The second was found on the tracks near the Boston & Albany tracks near the Market street bridge.

Actress Tells Secret

A Well Known Actress Tells How She Darkened Her Gray Hair and Promoted Its Growth with a Simple Home Made Mixture.

Miss Blanche Rose, a well-known actress, who darkened her gray hair with a simple preparation which she mixed at home, in a recent interview at Chicago, Ill., made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple home recipe, which they can mix easily. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the required shade. This will make a gray haired person look 20 years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, relieves itching and scalp humors and is excellent for dressing. Lord of Hair." ADVERTISEMENT.

MIDGET IN ARMY
World's Smallest Soldier WEIGHS 42 POUNDS

PARIS, April 11.—The French army has admitted to its ranks a youth named Defrance, who, although of the military age, twenty, weighs only forty-two pounds and is only 3 feet 3½ inches tall. The medical board found him physically fit in every way. It is understood he will be assigned to duties which will not oblige him to carry the marching outfit of the French soldier. The outfit is one and one-half times the midget's weight.

Elliott Denies New Haven Controls Billard Company

NEW YORK, April 11.—"The New Haven road does not in any way control the Billard company, nor has it control of the books of that company," declared Chairman Howard Elliott before leaving for Boston.

"The Billard company matters, which are now under investigation by the Commerce Commission, relate to happenings several years ago, before I was connected with the New Haven company. Every facility has been given by the New Haven company to the investigators of the Commerce Commission in the examination of the books and records of the New Haven company for the purpose of obtaining information about any transactions with the Billard company."

PREFERENCE TO SPANISH WAR VETS OPPOSED

In opposition to the bills giving preference to Spanish War veterans who take civil service examinations, the Massachusetts Civil Service Association has prepared and circulated a pamphlet. The association is opposed to either the absolute preference bill or the bill which would grant Spanish War veterans a 5 per cent. preference on their examination grading.

"If the question of reintroducing preference in our civil service system is to be discussed from the standpoint of practical politics," said Secretary Arthur H. Brooks of the association, "there should be little doubt about the rejection of the preference bill. Public opinion as reflected by the press editorially is overwhelmingly against any kind of favoritism and for fair play."

The association's pamphlet is entitled "Keep Preference Out of the Civil Service," and the statement by Ex-Governor Curtis Guild appears on the front page.

"I do not believe in the creation of any public employment trust, whether constitutional or not, by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

"Patriotism in war may be recognized in other ways. Patriotism in peace demands the elimination of all favoritism that the whole people may benefit by the most efficient and the people the most economical public service that can be obtain

"Let every decent citizen have an equal chance and may the best man win."

That 5 per cent. preference would operate to jump the beneficiaries of the schools of large numbers of other eligibles the Civil Service Association points out, is shown by two pages of lists of eligibles' percentages.

The pamphlet also contains three pages of resolutions and other statements of opposition from organizations, several pages of extracts of editorial opinion, veto messages, letters from former Governors, Dr. Eliot's objections and a concise historical summary of all the preference bills from 1895 to the present year.

SURVIVOR OF 8 SHIPS IN JAP TYPHOON HERE

Last January a typhoon caught eight vessels in Japanese waters. Seven of those vessels sank. The eighth, the only one to survive, reached Boston today.

She is the brand new freighter Kandahar of the Bucknell Line, Captain Kealsley, and the captain told the story of the typhoon.

"It was beyond description," he declared. "We came safe through only by the fortunes of the sea. The other seven vessels which sank were simply crushed under by the weight of ice. Hundreds of lives were lost.

"For three days the typhoon raged. For three days the thermometer registered eleven degrees below zero. On the third day, the ocean calm, Fujiyama, twenty-five feet above the deck, was an ice-covered cone. I think a man could not put his arms around them. A single rope became the size of a hawser with its ice coating.

"When the wind stopped it took our crew of sixty men five hours to chop free an anchor worthless to us.

"The Kandahar was out of Dalny, Manchuria, and after the storm got into Nagasaki. While they were there came the eruption and earthquake on Sakurajima. Ashes fell like rain, he said Captain Kealsley, "and the ashes fell on our deck."

DRIVERS SAY MILK STRIKE IS SPREADING

The milk-wagon drivers' strike against H. P. Hood & Sons spread until 125 men were out today, crippling the company so that boys under sixteen years old were pressed into service, as well as professional strike-breakers, according to state-posts given out by the men's union.

The union further asserted that deliveries were from two to six hours late, and that a large number of customers have refused to deal with the company because of its anti-union attitude. The strikers also claim to have filed complaint with the state Board of Labor and Industries, concerning the alleged violation of labor laws in the employment of these young boys as strike-breakers.

Forty-eight of the fifty-four men formerly employed at the Forest Hills station of the company, today were declared to be on strike, with all but two of the Hendi driver out, all but three of the Brookline men, half of the South Boston force and still others at the remaining seven stations.

Opposed to these sweeping claims of the union, Mr. Nelson C. Davis, for the company, declared that all of the teams were being operated on near-schedule time, and that only thirty of the force of more than 300 men were on strike. So far as the company is concerned, he said, the strike today virtually is a thing of the past.

MYSTERY 'AUNT' OF SOMERVILLE GIRL TO FIGHT

"Louise is my child and I shall not give her up," declares a mysterious New York woman who has taken Louise Gertrude Smith, the seven-year-old daughter of William W. Smith, Jr., of No. 12 Temple street, Somerville.

Smith is today prepared to fight the woman's claim in court.

He asserts that his wife, who died October 7, 1913, assured him the child was their own.

The birth records at the Boston registry show that the child is the daughter of William W. Smith, Jr., and Gertrude Gibson Smith, the latter being the name of Smith's deceased wife.

On the day of the funeral of Mrs. Smith, October 9, 1913, the New York woman came all the way from New York to be present at the services. When she left to visit her parents in Baltimore she asked to be allowed to take the child on a week's vacation. Since that time Mr. Smith has sought vainly to regain possession of the child.

FOUND NEWBORN BABE.

"She was the one bright spot in my life," he said today, "like one hope that I had to live for. The death of my wife was a severe enough blow, but for this woman, a comparative stranger, to come into my house and take my child away, adding to this the claim that she is my mother, is the severest blow that has ever come to me. My wife's lips are sealed now. She cannot speak. Between her or her me, but I will win regardless of this fact."

For years, ever since they were married, July 20, 1903, the couple had longed for a child. Late in the afternoon of June 11, 1906, he came home to find a card requesting him to come at once to No. 64 Whiting street, Roxbury. Not stopping to eat his supper, he hurried to the address. Arriving to see Mrs. Smith he was shown to an upstairs chamber. There he found his wife in bed. Beside her was a newborn babe. This the mother informed him was her child.

"WOMAN FONDLED CHILD."

The next day Smith had the mother and child removed to his home, No. 19 Temple street, Somerville, where she was attended by a trained nurse who had previously been engaged. There the three lived happily together. Two or three months after the child's birth upon Mr. Smith's return home from work he found a stylishly gowned woman of about thirty years fondling the baby. He was told she was a friend of Mrs. Smith.

At intervals during the next few years this woman came to the house and was spoken of by all hands as "Aunty." She took a little one to Boston, bought it trinkets, dolls, toys of all descriptions.

Fear New Boll in Cotton Seed

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Fear that the "pink boll worm," a dangerous cotton pest, may be introduced into the United States through the accidental presence of seed in lint cotton received by spinners, caused the Federal Horticultural Board today to warn cotton mills, especially those in the South, against it. Two or three months after the child's birth upon Mr. Smith's return home from work he found a stylishly gowned woman of about thirty years fondling the baby. He was told she was a friend of Mrs. Smith.

Dr. Hichborn to Go to Hospital

Dr. H. Everett Hichborn of No. 69 Mystic Valley parkway, Winchester, who was arrested after he threatened to kill a police officer, will today be sent to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation. Chief of Police McIntyre of Winchester ordered the arrest after a promise that he would go to the hospital. He had been ill.

CINCINNATI, April 11.—The City Club is expected to pass resolutions today protesting against the ousting of George F. Swain of Boston from charge of the rapid transit loop survey for Cincinnati.

DEFINES A KISS

"Consent Necessary"

COURT GIVES RULE

BERLIN, April 11.—The Imperial Supreme Court at Leipzig has filed a long-felt want in legal definitions, describing with precision the nature and legal status of a kiss. The text follows:

"A kiss is an operation performed upon another's body, requiring under all circumstances the recipient's sanction. Such operation may only be carried out without express permission when the one who kisses can be reasonably sure of the other's silent consent; for instance, in the case of relatives, parents, children, lovers and children.

"If, on the contrary, the recipient of the kiss resists—and that not merely for the sake of preserving appearances, but in all seriousness—then it must be held that the person so kissed regards the kiss as an illegal infringement of privilege and an assault upon honor. Hence, whosoever under such circumstances inflicts a kiss upon another makes himself guilty of assault.

"To fulfil this condition it is sufficient that the kiss be impressed against the other's will; it is unnecessary that the recipient should feel the kiss as an insult."

BACK BAY WOMAN WANTS HUSBAND BUT HIDES NAME

No. 514 Beacon street, Back Bay, is the address of a woman who has entertained Presidents, is self-supporting and brave enough to admit her age, and who offers some up-to-date Bostonian an opportunity to dodge the bachelor tax. She is lonesome and wants to get married.

Miss "Matrimony" is shielding her identity behind the name of "Dorothy Ashley" because of the prominence of her family, but she refuses to reveal the man she chooses must be big enough to boss her. All other qualifications are secondary.

"I had just as soon have a homely man. If he is only lovable and good," explained "Miss Ashley" in her apartment. "I am forty-one years old," she went on, "not awfully homely and not awfully good looking, but I am lonesome and want the companionship of a real, lovable husband.

"I want a man who is big enough to boss me and I don't want to have to tell him how to do things. I have been in the real estate business for the last ten years and I have had to tell the men who worked for me how to do every little thing. I want a husband who will know how to do things without being told.

"I can't tell you my real name, but it will say, however, that I have entertained Presidents Harrison and McKinley at my country home years ago, and many millionaires, bravants and diamonds. My father was prominent in State politics and I have relatives who are well known in financial circles. They would be shocked if I should ask for a husband over my real name. However, when I find the right man it will have no trouble in discovering my identity.

"I want my husband to be clean and refined, about my height, five feet eight inches, and not over fifty or under forty years of age. I want an everyday, good, honest man who will fight the battle with life that should be fought. I want him to have money enough to give me a good home."

DEFENDS EUROPE SEES NO NEED OF TOLL REPEAL

LONDON, April 11.—Truman Handy Newberry, secretary of the Navy in the Roosevelt administration, in the course of an interview with the AMERICAN correspondent today, declared himself emphatically in favor of free tolls for American coastwise shipping.

He not only favors free tolls but has facts and figures to prove the contentions that the United States has every right to exempt her own ships.

"The President says our right is debatable," Newberry began. "Of course it is debatable—here in England and in twenty other country of the globe. But the facts are not debatable, here or elsewhere, and the facts are best set forth in an analogy.

"I own a strip of land over which everybody in the world wants to cross. I charge a toll therefore, but under what system of reasoning under the sun must I charge my own children for crossing my own property? If every one else confronts me with a treaty wherein I have said I will not should cross on terms of equality, I still can insist justly that my own children do not come under the terms of that treaty.

NEWBERRY CITES CASE.

"Naturally the Canadian railways maintain that our right to let American bottoms use the canal free is debatable, for they are most vitally concerned in the success or Mr. Wilson's attempt to force the repeal measure through the Senate. With free tolls in force shippers in St. John, for instance, can transport a cargo from St. John to Portland, Maine, there the cargo can be transferred into an American vessel, wherein it can be carried to Spokane, again be transferred into an English vessel and landed at its destination in Vancouver.

"The saving effected by exemption of tolls is a great deal more than offset by the cost of transference of the cargo.

"Without free tolls Canadian shippers may either send direct from St. John to Vancouver in an English bottom or continue to patronize the C. P. R. or some other Canadian railroad.

"From my observation, England can discover no ground for the apparent apprehension felt in Washington of the dire consequences which must follow the refusal to repeal the exemption clause in the bill. As a matter of fact, the average Englishman not only is not interested but is absolutely unaware of the drastic measures taken by Washington to avoid 'offending' England in the matter. Free tolls is decidedly no issue.

"Personally, I doubt if one man in fifty knows a rap what is the final disposition of the matter.

"NEEDLESS BACKDOWN."

"Meantime, aside from keeping dividend paying stocks and bonds of the Canadian railways at their present level, the repeal will mean death to the first real boom American shipping has had in fifty years. They tell me that subsidy forever, but the American public is educated to spoil subsidy g-r-a-t-t and we all know from bitter experience that no fate other subsidy measures have met. It is a very high stand the President has taken, doubtless, but from what I gather here and on the Continent the repeal the exemption clause would be a needless backdown.

"Assuredly, it would simplify matters had the treaty signers inserted the word "other" between all nations. Referring to that part of the treaty guaranteeing equality to all shippers, but as it is 'all nations' have about the same standing when committees debate as would those who tried to prevent me from letting my own children cross my own property free."

TINY MILITANT FIGHTS THREE BIG POLICEMEN

LONDON, April 11.—A diminutive suffragette with the soul of an Amazon, was arraigned in Bow street police court today charged with smashing ten cases of Asiatic curiosities in the British museum. She created such a commotion that her case had to be adjourned.

The girl gave the name of May Steward and her age as 37. When led into court by 3 burly policemen she had to raise herself on her tip toes to peer over the rail of the prisoner's dock. As soon as the charge was read the trouble began.

Miss Steward emitted an ear piercing shriek and then a warden tried to quiet her picked up a bundle of legal papers and hurled it at the magistrate. The missle struck the police solicitor on the forehead causing him no damage.

"You must listen to me and give me justice," cried the prisoner. It required the combined efforts of three policemen to overpower her and lead her back to her cell.

In the afternoon she was again arraigned and held for trial.

The most serious scenes marked the second hearing this afternoon. As soon as Miss Steward was placed in the dock she began struggling and screaming. She was surrounded by six stalwart policemen, and although she could not be seen, her protests echoed through the courtroom.

"I don't recognize these proceedings as legal and I won't answer any questions," cried the girl.

This was the signal for a sympathizing audience to lift up her voice in protest. The latter was immediately ejected. The curator of the museum testified that the damage to the museum cases was about $149.

BRADFORD, England April 11.—Militant suffragettes stormed the meeting place of the delegates to the annual conference of the independent labor party today and broke up the session. Shouting "Votes for women" they repeatedly interrupted Keir Hardie, the famous labor leader, who presided, and he was compelled to abandon his efforts to lull the militants.

BELFAST, April 11.—A militant suffragette who refused to give her name was today sentenced to two months imprisonment for smashing windows in the headquarters of the Ulster provisional government (the organization of the Anti-Home Rule Orangemen). It is believed she was sent from London to harass the Ulsterites.

Federal Employees Have Right to March

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Attorney-General McReynolds today notified the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage that he found no reason to dissent from the opinion of the Civil Service Commission that all women employed in the government department have a right to participate as individuals in the suffrage parade May 9. More than 1600 women are expected to have pledged themselves to march if permitted to do so.

'I WANT TO BE LEFT ALONE,' SAYS CHANDLER

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 11—Declaring that he wants to be left alone, Byron D. Chandler, the "Millionaire Kid," is back with his mother in this city today. He added:

"As to showing up Grace LaRue, I will not need the assistance of the public to do that. When the time comes, I'll tell my story. I don't want to be considered and exploited as a freak or an aristocratic side show. I'm almost opposite to everything that has been written about me, and it's time I defended myself.

KNOWS FEW CHORUS GIRLS.

"When I was a little fellow I had money. My father gave me all I wanted. Even in childhood I always had an income of my own. Boys used to envy me.

"When I went to college my father gave me a liberal allowance. I was small for my age, and my clothes were out of proportion to my stature. Then came stories of my escapades with chorus girls. Believe me, I didn't know as many chorus girls as does the average college girl who isn't an outright grind. I never hung around stage doors like the fatuted Johnnies.

"My father left me a goodly fortune. It was not a million, however. He wasn't cold in his grave before lies went broadcast about me. I was represented as actually glorifying in his death, dancing out of the door of the Amoskeag Bank, where the money was, waving a bankbook in the air and shouting, 'Now for joy!' As a matter of fact, I mourned my father greatly, and the money left me was safely invested in the best kind of securities.

"I am richer by far today than I was at the time of my father's death. I guess that refutes the claim that I have been a spendthrift.

"NO PRUDE OR ANGEL."

"I was accused of leaving good autos to rot by the roadside in France. When an auto is coupled and buckled into a shapeless mass, what good is it? I don't care for junk, therefore I did not consider it necessary to drag the remains of a ruined machine along with me.

"I never slapped nonlemen's faces nor created riots in Paris.

"What money I have, I need. Were I to seek a position with a reputable firm today, I would be turned away simply because of the reputation that has been given me. People refuse to believe that I am not a spendthrift, a home-wrecker, and good-for-nothing. I am not a prude nor an angel, yet I don't wish to be longer regarded as a blackguard and a vicious eccentric."

Bryan's Llama Is Held Up in England

LONDON, April 11.—The llama in whose welfare William J. Bryan is interested arrived in Manchester, where the steamship Verdi's new refrigerating plant is to be installed, but has not been allowed to land, as English law in the matter of foot and moth diseases is strict. Experts are examining the google-eyed creature secretly to see if he can pass the alien laws. If the decision is favorable he will be housed in the gardens of the Royal Zoological Society.

Gate Tender Saves Girls from Train

WEBSTER, April 11.—Mary Desreau, sixteen, and Ethel Kilbane, seventeen, were saved from being struck by a train at the Webster station by the gate tender, Louis Beau, who pulled them off the track with the train less than fifteen feet away.

"Dry" Town Loses Lights and Police

CHICAGO, April 11.—As a result of going "dry" the town of Minooka, Ill., about forty-five miles southwest of Chicago, will lose its public lighting and police force, and its citizens on and after April 15, will have to go home in the dark because there will be no funds to meet the expenses of the village.

CHARITY CLUB GIVES PLAY FOR ARCHIE THOMAS

Final plans are completed and everything is in readiness for the opening performance of "Petticoat Ranch," a farce comedy, to be given in Jordan Hall on Thursday afternoon and Friday evening, April 16 and 17, by members of the Junior Charity Club in aid of Archie Thomas, the boy leper on Penikese Island.

The proceeds of the show will go toward the financial outfitting of electrical sending apparatus for the wireless outfit for which a subscription is being raised through the AMERICAN, in answer to the unfortunate boy's appeal. The daily rehearsals indicate the production will be one of the most successful ever staged by the club.

The cast for the show includes: "Ali Sing," Mrs. Robert H. Beckley; "Polly," N. Winnifred Wagner; "Sue," Mary A. Dodge; "Mabel," Helen Walker; "Nancy," Mrs. Eugenie E. Young; "Marion," Emily Kinnier Norcross; "Bob," Rubena Jordan; "Six Shoot Pete," Madeleine Reed; "Slim," Florence Coggan; "Nip," Mrs. J. C. White; "Tuck," Mrs. Earl Martin; "Earl of Hurlburt," Mary Louise Ordway. Cowboys, Lillian Symonds, Mrs. R. J. Macdonald, Mrs. E. W. Lincoln, Dorothy Digweedy, Hazel Field and Dorothy Angel. Ranch girls, Carlene Gleason, Margaret Lawrence, Marion Johnson, Mrs. Somerby Smith, Marion Lanergan, Louise Noera, Helene O'Meady and Mrs. Josiah Hathaway.

WIRELESS FUND FOR BOY LEPER IS NOW $264.50

The Archie Thomas Wireless Fund has reached a total of $264.50. The AMERICAN hopes to complete the amount needed in a few days. The response to the AMERICAN'S call for funds to give the boy leper at Penikese Island a wireless equipment has been very gratifying and a much better and more complete outfit than was first suggested has been decided upon by the committee of wireless experts who will handle the fund. The manufacturers of wireless outfits who will furnish the apparatus have agreed to deliver it for the cost of making it, so that a complete first-class set will be secured. The funds to date:

WHY SPRING COLDS ARE DANGEROUS

If Neglected They Lead to Serious, Perhaps Fatal, Results.

If you get cold at this time of year and try to "let it wear off," it frequently develops into a stubborn lung trouble, which may in turn become chronic asthma, bronchitis or consumption. It is important to remember that Father John's Medicine relieves colds because of its nourishing body-building elements, which give strength to the system and enable each organ to resume its normal functions. Father John's Medicine is not a patent medicine, contains no injurious drugs, but is a pure food medicine, for those who are weak and run down.

DETECTIVE KELLY.

The Newest Pathe Photoplay.

CHAPTER I.

The Bascombe Briggses lived the simple life elaborately. They lived the simple life because they did not know how to live any other; and they lived it elaborately because they had more money than they knew what to do with.

Having come to New York they felt obliged to occupy a "mansion" and have a great many servants. They would have been much more happy in a clapboard cottage over in Hoboken, where they could have dined together at the kitchen table as they did in Butte. But they realized this only vaguely.

It was thus that Hooks, the butler, who was really a model servant only had been enslaved for nothing worse than thievery from the best families on two continents, came to hold so high and powerful a position in their home.

Hooks won the confidence of Mrs. Briggs by teaching her how to serve a cup of tea without letting her know that he was teaching her. He won Briggs by treating him with deep and studied respect. He ruled the other servants with an iron hand.

Meanwhile he had a regular income from running accounts for unnecessary "family supplies." He stole here and there from his employers and from their few guests. All in all Hooks had an enviable position. There is nothing so amusing to the sincere crook as to be absolutely trusted by those whom he robs.

Hooks was still trusted after the disappearance of the pearl necklace.

CHAPTER II.

The pearl necklace was the most treasured possession of the Briggses. It had been purchased for $100,000 on their first trip to Europe, and it had been photographed and written about for the newspapers until Mrs. Briggs considered herself quite a glowing personality in its reflected shimmer.

It disappeared from the safe in Mr. Briggs's writing room on a night when Hooks had requested permission to go out.

Hooks seldom asked favors. It was his custom to take them, and less unsophisticated people than the Briggses would have seen something peculiar in the fact that he asked as if he might "pass the evening with a friend."

He met the friend a few blocks away and they wandered down to the East Side together, where they met more friends.

At midnight Hooks was back in the writing room of the Briggs home. He had opened the safe with the combination he had found written innocently, on his employer's detachable shirt cuff. He took out the pearl necklace and handed it through the window to his friend. The friend vanished. Hooks went to bed. If Mrs. Jed Horricks, from Castor, Montana, had not happened to arrive on a visit next day, the jewels would not have been missed for weeks.

Mrs. Horricks was overjoyed to see her old friend, Mrs. Briggs. But most of all she wanted to see the pearl necklace, the fame of which had spread into the West.

"Hooks, ask my husband to open the safe and send me the pearl necklace," said Mrs. Briggs.

Hooks, with every inward fiber quivering, showed not an outward sign of trouble as he carried the message upstairs.

"Tell her it ain't in here," said Mr. Briggs crossly after puffing over the safe for ten minutes and finding no necklace. "She must of took it out and left it somewheres."

The stately Hooks carried the word back to the drawing room without a quiver.

There was a quick panic.

Mrs. Briggs, closely followed by Mrs. Horricks, rushed into the writing room.

Mr. Briggs was quizzed, threatened, practically accused of crime. He became wrathful and left the house to call the police.

CHAPTER III.

Detective Emmet Kelly had almost reached the end of his usefulness as an investigator of crimes. He had become too famous. Criminals had mapped his physiognomy and charted every trait of his physique in order to penetrate his countless disguises. Even criminals have their Bertillon bureaus; even the underworld its Pinkerton.

But reading in his paper the announcement of a $5,000 reward for the recovery of the famous Briggs necklace, Detective Kelly was tempted to go back to work. Like an old war horse, he scented a good fight from afar—and loved to scent it.

He called on the Briggses.

"We've taken up this here case," said Detective Sergeant Kipp, who with several assistants from headquarters was examining the house. "We don't need your help, I guess, Mr. Kelly."

"Very well," replied Kelly, moving toward the door. "How do you do, Hickey?" he said pleasantly to Hooks, who opened the door for him.

CHAPTER IV.

In "Cordy" Benson's establishment a gun gleamed suddenly.

Not that this in itself was an unusual happening in the East Side den of vice fronted by a black, nameless alley and backed by the black river. It was only peculiar in that it was the distinguished looking visitor who drew the gun.

Visitors in high hats and evening clothes were not any more unusual than guns at "Cordy's." They were known as sightseers. But they were not expected to draw guns—emphatically not.

"Now, look here," Detective Kelly, sightseer, was saying from behind the leveled barrel. "I want you, Hooks. I don't need anybody else. I saw you get the pearls just now from the man who slipped them to you through the window after you opened the safe. I know you. You know me. Will you come along quietly?"

"Sure," said Hooks.

"All right. Kelly laid the revolver down on the table and turned to get a pair of handcuffs from his overcoat on the chair.

With a yell of triumph Hooks sprang forward and seized the gun.

"You will, will you?" he cried. "Now, you'll come with ME, Mister Emmet Kelly!"

"Yes, I'm coming," said Kelly. "Just slip those on, will you?"

The revolver clicked five times rapidly.

Hooks began to curse.

"I didn't come here to hurt you, Hooks," said Kelly. "I never use cartridges."

The two other men in the room looked on, lowering but silent, as Hooks was led out.

But on the corner of Avenue A an automobile suddenly flashed to the curb beside Kelly and his prisoner.

More than one gun was drawn now. Kelly was quite relied and Hooks whisked into the machine. He was away with the precious pearls.

CHAPTER V.

"I wonder where Detective Kipp is," said Kelly to himself as he arose and started for the nearest telephone. "I should have that man Hooks arrested for assault."

By telephone he got a taxi and was driven across town and across the river to a railroad station.

Reams of records and the quick judgment of the moment told him where Hooks would go. His machine actually made the same ferryboat on which the butler's car crossed.

In the butler's car the files were busy on the handcuffs. Hooks was carrying a suit case as he leaped out and rushed to his train.

Kelly took the road in the stanch little taxi.

"It's a race," he said to the driver, how much do you want for this machine?"

"What's you give?" asked the man. "I'll make it $500 and you can keep what's left of it."

"Boy—what are we goin' into?"

"Into the train. Here's the five hundred."

The Buffalo Express thundered around a curve to find an automobile directly in its path. The shrieking whistle had no effect. The taxicab was crushed to splinters under the grinding wheels.

The train stopped. Passengers crowded out. An excited man with a suit case leaped through the window almost into the arms of Detective Kelly.

"How are you, Hooks?" said the detective. "I'll take the pearls this time."

Name Your Famous Women

New England women are coming to the front in the contest to tell who are the world's six most distinguished women. The problem is proving a real puzzle to many.

Remember, the AMERICAN offers $100 in cash awards for the best answers. The object is to assist the Panama International Exposition Board, which will take the six most distinguished women of the world to San Francisco in 1915 as a feature of the exposition.

Try to select a representative of New England, as special importance will be attached to this. The six living women receiving the highest number of votes will be the forman list with which yours will be compared.

The first prize is $35; second, $25; third, $15; fourth, $10, and $5 each; sixth and seventh, $5 each. In the event of a tie the cash will be equally divided.

Send lists to Panama-Pacific Contest Department, Boston AMERICAN. Here are some new ones:

SCHOOLBOY BASEBALL NINES START THE SEASON GOING ON MANY PARKS TODAY

FEDERALS WIN BATTLE OVER RESERVE RULE

Although Judge Sessions in United States Court at Grand Rapids, refused to enjoin Catcher William Killifer from playing with the Philadelphia Nationals—to which he jumped back after signing up with the Federals—an examination of the opinion in the case today discloses that the court ruled that the form of contracts on which organized baseball relies to hold its players is invalid and not enforceable.

This feature was a great victory for the Federals, as it is now maintained by their lawyers that the opinion, if sustained, opens the doors for the Federals to sign up players in organized baseball, regardless of the reserve clause.

If the same opinion is held by the higher courts, Federal League lawyers say the "outlaws" will be free to sign up any players who will accept their terms for next season. Said the court on this question of organized baseball contracts:

CONTRACTS NOT ENFORCEABLE.

The leading authorities are agreed that executory contracts of this nature can neither be enforced in equity nor form the basis of an action at law to recover damages for breach. The reason for the decision is that such contracts are lacking in the necessary qualities of definiteness and certainly in mutuality.

The 1913 contract between Killifer and the Philadelphia Nationals relative to the reservation of the defendant Killifer for the season of 1914 is lacking in all these essential elements. It is wholly uncertain and indefinite with respect to salary and with respect to terms and conditions of proposed employment. It is nothing more than a contract to enter into a contract in the future if the parties can agree to contract.

Altough it is founded upon sufficient consideration it lacks mutuality because the Philadelphia club can terminate it at any time upon ten days' notice, while the other party has no option and is bound during the entire contract period. A contract exists, but if broken by either party the other is remediless because the courts are helpless either to enforce its performance or to award damages for its breach.

FEDERALS DID WRONG.

Are the plaintiffs in court with clean hands? Knowing that the defendant Killifer was under moral, if not a legal, obligation to the Philadelphia club for the and by offering him a longer season of 1914 they sent for him term of employment and a much larger compensation induced him to repudiate his obligation to his employers. In doing so a wilful wrong was done to the Philadelphia club.

Can it be doubted if the plaintiffs had not interfered Killifer would have carried out his agreement with the Philadelphia club in honor and good faith? The conduct of both is not only open to criticism but to censure, but is tainted with unfairness and injustice, if not with actionable fraud.

KILLIFER NOT DEPENDABLE.

In his decision Judge Sessions after paying his respects to the plaintiffs adds: Killifer's record.

Unfortunately the record shows that he is a person upon whose pledged word little or no reliance can be placed. He neither hesitates nor scruples to disregard and violate his express engagements and agreements for gain to himself.

His repudiation of one contract for the making of which he had been paid several hundred dollars and his breach of another contract entered into after at least a week's deliberation gave rise to the present controversy. Viewed from the standpoint of common honesty and fair dealing his action in this case is an unenviable one.

The motion for an injunction must be denied, not because the exactory part of the Killifer contract between the defendants was of superior or different force and effect, not because their contract between the plaintiffs and Killifer is of itself void, but the courts will enforce, not because there are any equities interwoven in favor which excuse or exempt him from the performance of his engagements, but because the merits of the controversy are with the defendant club, but solely because the motion for conference of the plaintiffs in procuring the contract upon which their right to relief is and must be founded is not square with one of the vital and fundamental principles of equity which touches to the quick the dignity of the court's conscience and controls its decisions regardless of all other considerations.

Ed Reulbach Due for Great Season

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11—"Unless I am very much mistaken, Ed Reulbach is going to pitch better ball this year than he ever pitched before." Such were the cheering words of Manager Robinson in discussing the prospects of the Superbas. "He is in perfect condition, declared the manager, "and is taking a tremendous interest in his work. The older he is the more he knows, and he is ever learning something new. He is going to surprise those who thought he was all in because he was sent from Chicago to Brooklyn."

King Alfonso Would Play Polo, But ---

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—King Alfonso of Spain probably will select the team which will represent Spain at the international polo tournament in San Francisco for which the Panama-Pacific Exposition has appropriated $100,000. Were it possible for the monarch to overcome probable objections of his cabinet based on the dangers of assassination, he would be a member of the team.

BASEBALL STARS SHY AT LUNCH, SAYS COBB

Written for the Boston American.

By TY COBB.

A newspaper friend of mine came to Augusta last Fall to pay me a visit and to do a little hunting with me. He had been accustomed to the Big Town and was used to having lunch.

The first day that I told him I hoped he did not count on lunch because none was served in my house, he looked kind of downcast, and I took him downtown to a restaurant, where he tackled enough food to do me a dinner.

It was not three or four days, though, before he had become used to only two meals, and he developed twice as much pepper on the diet as he had displayed when he first arrived.

He has written me frequently since his visit, and he informs me that he lives right along on two meals a day now, and has not been threatened with starving to death so far.

He adds that he never felt better in his life and that he has been in perfect health all Winter. He has also converted some of his friends, and has instituted quite a movement for two meals a day which has caught on and spread.

As a matter of fact, I don't see how any man, who is confined to office for eight or nine hours each day, and who gets very little exercise, can expect to eat three meals and show any pepper.

It takes a lot of fuel to run all up with too much fuel and reduces the efficiency. In automobile parlance, it gives too rich a mixture.

They Run Wild for Their Dinner.

After each game the fan sees the last of the players rushing for the club house no matter how tired they all may be. That is the habit of a Big Leaguer.

But the dash does not stop when the threshold of the club house is crossed. Not on your life. It is born into every Big Leaguer, after he has been in the fast society for a time, to rush at everything he does.

Therefore, all the boys dress as rapidly as they can and dig for the hotel, where on the road, before they hustle themselves into the dining room and abuse the waiter if he does not rush on the food with the speed of a sprinter.

It is the nervous energy wearing off. All through a game a player is wound up to concert pitch, and this winds perceptibly after the battle.

The first relaxation comes after dinner, when you will generally find the man who was hastening most to grab the most leading around the lobby doing nothing. But when a ball player has something on his mind to be done, he always wants to accomplish it with a rush.

It is the same with boarding a train. They all rush into the coaches and rush for their berths as if the berths were going to move away if they did not flop into them quick.

They get sore if there is some hitch in the delivery of their baggage, but train wrecks do not faze veterans to any great extent.

After dinner many of the players go to the theatres, while some go to moving pictures, where the latter is usually invited to different shows when we go to play a town, which reduces the cost of living. After the theatre, it is home and bed.

Players Have Little Time Left.

It is evident from this outline of the habits of a Big Leaguer that he has not much idle time on his hands. This does not take into consideration the hard jumps, when a club will travel for a day and two nights on a sleeper and then get out to play one game or perhaps a double-header.

Toward the end of the season, when there are frequently odd contests to be played off, a team may be forced to spend several nights in succession in a sleeper and play ball every day besides.

I don't care what anybody may say, I know that a man cannot get the rest in a Pullman that he acquires in a stationary bed.

I said that I do not eat any lunch. Perhaps it would interest the reader to know in detail what some of the stars in our league do about lunch, so I will dwell on the habits of a few of these whom I know.

Walter Johnson is a great boy to eat ice cream, and you will find him consuming a big plate of it most every day about noontime.

Bicker is the one exception to the lunch rule. He has always lived on a farm and is accustomed to the early to bed and early to rise theory, so he gets up bright and chirk even in the season when the club is on the road.

Members of the Athletics say that "Bake" hates the rush, anyway. He will sit down and eat a hearty lunch and go out and play baseball in the afternoon, and a whole lot of it.

Eddie Collins is a great consumer of chocolate ice cream, and he also likes broth.

"Eddie" Plank will eat a little soup when he expects to work in the afternoon.

I ate lunch with Christy Mathewson one day last Fall during the World's Series, and he confined himself to a plate of soup and a chocolate eclair.

BALDWIN READY FOR BOUT WITH JOHNNY DUNDEE

By RINGSIDE.

Matty Baldwin, the Charlestown Bearcat, who has one of the toughest fights of his life on his hands when he exchanges jabs with Johnny Dundee of New York at the Atlas Club Tuesday, is well aware that he is in for a very hot session and is in as good condition as he ever was in his life. He weighs less at present than he has at any time for the past three years. On the scales yesterday Baldwin tipped the beam at exactly 131½ pounds and expects to be down to 129 when the time for weighing in Tuesday afternoon swings round.

* * *

Dundee, his opponent, will reach town early Sunday, as he will jump for the Hub immediately after fighting in Gotham Saturday night. The little Italian champion aspirant will be accompanied by Johnny Reece who shows in one of the prelims, and the pair will work out together Monday and Tuesday. Dundee, according to his manager, Scotty Monteith, will not scale above 126 when he enters the ring.

* * *

Representative Eddie Murphy, who now manages Baldwin, claims that Matty will win Tuesday and has declared his intention of challenging Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight title holder. He says he is willing to post a forfeit to have his battler meet the champion at 126 pounds ringside any time and any place.

* * *

There promises to be something doing at the Unity Cycle A. A. in Lawrence next Thursday night, when Al Shubert, the crack New Bedford featherweight, and Mike Malis have it out. This scrap is about the classiest ever staged by the Lawrence aggregation and should be full of fireworks from beginning to end. Shubert has title dreams, but if he isn't careful, Malis is liable to wake him up. The pair will box twelve rounds and will make 121 pounds ringside.

* * *

The prelims at the University A. C. show in Cambridge size up very well as has been the case in other battles put on by the management of this new club. The men are well matched and of the type that fight every minute they are in the ring. Patsy Greene, of Cambridge; meets Young Duffy of Jamaica Plain; Gus Murphy, another native son, battles Victor Florice of the Navy, and Johnny Boyle, brother of the clever bantam, "Phinney," faces Fudge Murphy who hails from Cambridge.

* * *

Al McCoy, the new claimant of the middleweight title, who became famous in a night by sending George Chip to sleep, is acting like a real champion. He has signed up for ten weeks on a vaudeville circuit and will start Monday on a week in Pittsburgh. He has served notice that there will be nothing doing in the way of matches until the stage contract has been filled.

RED SOX OPEN 2-GAME SERIES WITH THE REDS

SCORE BY INNINGS.

	R.	H.	E.
Boston... 1 0 0 3 3 0 0 4 1—12	14	0
Dayton.. 0 0 1 0 0 2 0 0 0— 3	9	3

By JACK CONWAY.

CINCINNATI, O., April 11.—The Red Sox arrived here late this morning ready to battle the Cincinnati Reds in a two-game series beginning this afternoon.

Carrigan's band will wing up their stay here tomorrow and will then board a rattler for Boston, where they are due to arrive Monday night at 5:35.

The red hosed athletes were feeling in better spirits today after winning from the Dayton cuss of the Central League yesterday by a score of 12 to 2 and are out to make it two straight victories over Charley Frey's gang of ball tossers.

Ban Johnson, president of the American League and the Czar of organized baseball, made a social call on President Lannin in Dayton. Johnson was in Cincinnati yesterday morning and was informed by Arthur Irwin of the New York American that the Red Sox were booked to play in Dayton.

Ban then decided to take a trip to the Cash Register City and see Mr. Lannin and at the same time give Carrigan's team the once over.

Johnson occupied a seat in the grandstand during the game. He was much impressed with the Red Sox and was in a talkative mood in discussing baseball matters with the writer, he said.

"The ruling in the Killifer case was a great victory for organized baseball. It proved to the Federal League magnates that they cannot tamper with players under contract.

"The old reserve clause has been given a great deal of publicity lately, but we have substituted a clause for it in all of our contracts and the new clause is perfectly valid and will stand any test to which it may be put in the courts.

"Baseball could not exist if it were not for the reserve clause. It protects both the club owners and the players. The public is also benefited, for if there was not a reserve clause the backing of the most financial backing would secure most of the star players and the league races would be a one-sided affairs.

"The club owners are usually willing to give their players a fair deal. They do not wish to have dissatisfied ball tossers on their payroll and consequently are liberal in paying salaries.

"I think the Federal League will complete its season. But the men behind it will probably lose money. They are not versed in baseball matters and reriser to be advised. They will soon discover that they will have a difficult task in making both ends meet.

"Even if the Federals have a successful season from a financial standpoint, they will not be recognized by organized baseball as far as the American League is concerned. We will fight them to a finish and will not give them any quarter. And we do not ask for any.

"There should be another great pennant race in the American League during the coming season. The Red Sox are represented by a fine ball club and are sure to give the Athletics a bitter battle for championship honors.

"President Lannin and Bill Carrigan form a great combination and one which the other clubs will find it difficult to beat. There is harmony within the ranks of the team

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Dick Crutcher, the St. Joe recruit, will get a chance to work for Boston against the Senators in the final game this afternoon.

He will start in the box and go as far as it is deemed advisable. Opposing him will be Joe Boehling, the left-hander who was secured from Worcester and who pitched great ball for Griffith last season. George Tyler may pitch the last few innings in order that he may hold his present great form.

Rudolph and Perdue did the pitching for the Braves yesterday. The former had absolutely nothing except a prayer and he just prayed himself through the four innings he worked. He had just joined the team after a few days spent at his home in the bosom of his family.

"No more vacations for you fellows," declared Stallings in the hotel lobby after the game. "I let Rudolph go home from Atlantn and he promised to go up to Fordham and keep in condition by working out with the college boys.

NO MORE VACATIONS FOR MEN.

"He didn't go near Fordham. He went home and spent the time playing on the floor with his baby. No, sir, no more going home for any player on my team from now on."

While Rudolph pitched poor ball against Walter Johnson, the Swede had the Boston team baffled all the way. To be sure, Schmidt and Gowdy found him for solid two-baggers, but aside from these Johnnie only two safeties were made off Johnson, and one of these was really an error by McBride, and only liberal scoring turned it into a hit.

Johnnie Evers' face? Johnson for the first time in his career. In fact, it was the first time Evers ever saw the man who is acknowledged to be the greatest pitcher in the world.

After the game Johnnie was asked what he thought of Johnson. He said: "I found all that has been said of him is true. He certainly made a monkey of me the first time I went to bat.

"He had me ready to run out of the box and I struck at balls that were away off from the plate. He has more stuff than I ever saw in a pitcher, yet I am told he did not let himself out. When he is in midseason form he must be simply unbeatable."

Evers was roundly cheered when he stepped to the plate for the first time. It was his first appearance in Washington in his life. The "fans," of course, knew him by reputation.

PRAISE FOR BOSTON TEAM.

The "fans," by the way, said the Braves were the liveliest bunch of players they had seen in this town in many a day, and in spite of the fact that Boston lost the game 7 to 4, they predict that Stallings' men will make a fine showing in the National League race this season.

The Boston players appeared in their new traveling uniforms for the first time. They are the same color, dark blue with red stripes, as last year. But the new Navado coats are very gaudy things, containing all the colors of the rainbow except yellow, which is a color that Stallings bars from his ball club.

Just Give This the "Once Over"

The big league baseball season opens next week. The Federal League has upset all the old "dope." Complete review of the baseball situation as it is today, by all the major league managers and other experts—illustrated.

The Boston American's prize battle songs for the Red Sox and the Braves. The songs will be published, together with the names of the prize winners.

Ty Cobb, the top-notcher in all-around baseball, will end the series of baseball anecdotes he has been writing all Winter for the Boston AMERICAN, and will begin a new series in which he will keep you posted with expert comment on the baseball news day by day.

Willie Ritchie will begin his own story of his life. Ritchie is in in the centre of the pugilistic limelight today. He is the biggest money-maker in the game—gathers more income than a railroad president in fact. His story would be a romance if it were not for the fact that every line of it is a true story of real life.

Francis Ouimet, the most famous of American golfers, is creating a furore in Europe. No champion that ever left Boston has aroused more excitement abroad. There's an unusual story about it.

Walter Camp will continue his column of general sporting comment on athletic news from here and everywhere.

Grays Play Brown at Providence Today

PROVIDENCE, April 11. — The Providence Grays, led by "Smiling" Bill Donovan, fresh from their training camp at Savannah, Ga., line up with Brown today. Captain Nash of Brown will place on the diamond practically the same nine that opposed New York University on Wednesday, when Brown won by 16 to 0.

Boston Team Loses.

In the annual bowling game between teams representing Walker & Pratt of Boston and Flagg & Willis of Brockton, the latter won all three strings. The first two strings were duckpins and the third at candlepins.

FIFTY RUNNERS IN CATHEDRAL 10-MILE RACE

Over fifty of the best ten-mile runners will start in the ninth annual road race of the Cathedral Y. M. C. A. this afternoon. The race will start at the corner of Union Park and Harrison avenue at 3 o'clock.

Such stars as Cliff Horne, the New England ten-mile champion, Jimmy Henigan of Malden and Joe Lordon of Cambridge, will start and the race should be one of the closest of the season. The entries follow:

Harvard Freshmen to Have Class Elevens

Plans made by President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard, for a new system of freshman athletics, have been announced.

Football teams will be formed to represent each of the dormitories in which the freshmen are to live beginning next fall, and any member of the class desiring to play will be required to practice with his dormitory squad. There will be a series of games between the dormitory teams and from the best material developed a class team will be chosen to play a limited number of other college teams, including Yale and Princeton freshmen.

Ouimet Busy Again After Day of Rest

LONDON, April 11.—Francis Ouimet, the American open golf champion, was busy on the links again after his rest yesterday, the first layoff he has taken since his arrival here.

With Arthur G. Lockwood he traveled to Weston-Super-Mare, where they will engage in two rounds.

"I enjoyed the matches at Deal, Sandwich and Prince's splendidly," said Ouimet. "I expect to take ten pounds off before I start in the championship matches."

TUFTS BATTLES DARTMOUTH AT FENWAY PARK

TODAY'S BATTING ORDER.

TUFTS.	DARTMOUTH.
Sinford, 2b.	Sullivan, l.f.
Lee, 3b.	Meadell, c.f.
Volk, 1b.	Louden, r.f.
Angell, l.f.	Cook, 1b.

Leland, r.f.	Kimball, 3b.
Bennett, c.	Waunmaker, c.
Krepps, p.	Hallett, p.
	Willard, p.

Unusual interest is being manifested in the game between the Dartmouth and Tufts nines which will be played at Fenway Park this afternoon. Play will start at 3 o'clock.

Both teams have many local followers and a big outpouring of "fans" is expected despite the chilly weather. Tufts will probably bring along a band to enliven the occasion.

This will be the first game of the season for Dartmouth and the second for Tufts, the Medford nine having played Colgate yesterday. Dartmouth, nevertheless, is in fine fettle for the battle, after putting in some busy hours at the Russell Field, Cambridge, for the past few days.

Hallett, the star pitcher for the Hanoverians, will probably oppose Krepps in the box. These two youngsters met twice last season, Hallett gaining the decision each time in spite of the fact that Krepps held his opponents to four hits on one occasion and six the other. Krepps has been showing great form in practice and is out to revenge these defeats.

Coach Connors Will Continue at Exeter

EXETER, N. H., April 11.—There was rejoicing in school and town when it became known that Coach George S. Connors had signed a ten-year-contract as coach of the track team, trainer and assistant to the director of the academy gymnasium. The terms are private, but he doubtless received a substantial increase.

There had been some anxiety since it became known that the athletic authorities of the University of Pennsylvania were in negotiation with Connors.

Cut in B. C. Squad; Woods Will Pitch

The Boston College varsity baseball candidates is making strenuous preparations for the opening game with the University of Maine, which will be played at the National League grounds on April 17. The squad received its first cut this week and is now composed of thirty-five men. Greatest interest is being centered in the pitching staff and, judging from the tryouts "Scooch" Woods, the veteran twirler, seems to have the call.

Yale 'Bowl' Will be Ready for Big Game

NEW HAVEN, Ct., April 11.—The progress made in the construction of the Yale "bowl" is such that Secretary David Daggett of the Yale committee of twenty-one today expressed confidence that the "bowl" would be ready for the football game with Harvard next Fall.

Notes from Red Sox Camp

By JACK CONWAY

DAYTON, O., April 11.—Walter Hegh has been dubbed "Pep" by his teammates. Hegh is the most active player on the team and has a difficult task keeping quiet even while eating.

"CHIEF" GARLOW has great faith in Harry Hooper's ability to order everything on the bill of fare which is good to eat. After Harry gives his lengthy order to a waiter the Indian hurler will lift up his head and remark, "Give me the same."

BILL CARRIGAN will take all of his recruits back to Boston with the team. He will then "place" some of the rookies in minor league berths where they will be able to gain some needed experience.

JOE BURNS will probably land a few players for his Lewiston New England League club. Burns has his lines out for two pitchers.

THE majority of the Red Sox youngsters were signed for healthy salaries, and if any of them are sent to clubs in a Class B league President Lannin will be obliged to pay part of their salary, as no minor league combination can afford to pay major league salaries.

HARRY HOOPER and Clyde Engle will be glad when the team reaches Boston, as they will then be able to engage in their golf matches which have been interrupted since the Red Sox left Hot Springs.

PRESIDENT LANNIN may secure a golf partner when the team reaches Boston and hurl another challenge at Hooper and Engle. The Red Sox owner, while teaming with Adrian Scraps, was twice defeated by Hooper and Engle at Hot Springs.

THOMAS has made a big impression by his work this Spring. He is full of "pep" and is throwing well to the bases. Thomas has a strong throwing arm and he forces opposing base runners to keep close to the sacks.

TUFTS CHAMPS ENTER THE NATIONALS

Three national champions have already entered and the rest of the title holders have assured the A. A. U. officials that they will be on hand for the national boxing amateur championships at Mechanics Hall.

Tommy Reagan, 115-pound champion; Mike Crowley, 125-pound champion, and Charles Askins, 145-pound titlist, are the three whose blanks have been sent in.

More out-of-town boxers than ever will appear in the ring, Cleveland especially being well represented, two Cleveland clubs, the Cleveland A. C. and the Root A. C. have entered a man in each class. All these representatives are youngsters with long records and a number of titles seem slated to go West.

Entries will close with George V. Brown of the R. A. A. on April 11, and to the last time it is expected that several hundred searchers for ring glory will be registered.

The demand for tickets is greater than ever, and in order to accommodate patrons a down-town office will be opened Monday at No. 24 School street, where the sale will be on till Friday morning.

Easter

By CONSTANCE CLARKE

GOD leaned across the firmament and cast a thoughtful eye
Over the fretful world beneath where men and women die,
And even as he watched, a stream of souls passed swiftly by.

It was a time of deathless calm, a void of starless black;
It was a time of waiting for a soul to wander back,
And for the light of countless stars God did not feel the lack.

And even as he watched, God smiled, there came a deafening roar,
A thousand angels pushed aside the clouds from Heaven's door,
A blinding flame, then all was dark and quiet as before.

But on the earth the glorious soul of day was born anew,
A day of smiling eyes above a soul of fire and dew,
And on each spot where thorns had sprung an Easter lily grew.

Very Badly Biffed!

Courtenay Bullions kicked himself as he walked out of the court room. Here, on his first appearance as a barrister, he had been beaten by a third-rate lawyer.

"The little 'un was too smart for you, sir?" said his humble client in a disappointed tone.

"Trickery—trickery!" he replied.

"Ah, that may be; but he sould jaw well enough!"

Later in the afternoon Bullions encountered the lawyer comfortably sunning himself in the smoke room of the hotel. Against his will, spite rose within him.

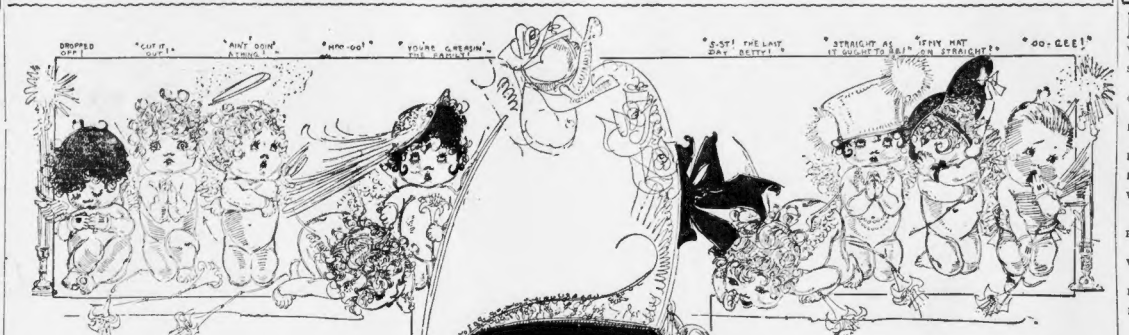
"Sir," he said, "is there any case that is too dirty for you to touch or any criminal so low that you won't defend him?"

"No," came the quiet reply. "Why, what have you been doing now, my boy?"

Easter in Loveland

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service

BY NELL BRINKLEY



LENT ends in Love-land! And all the weary, restless Dannys are glad—glad—glad! The last day—the pious, long, Lily-day with its two rivers of color swimming up and down the av'nuh, its song-filled churches, its organ-voices everywhere like the deep hum of the wind in the pines, its Easter bonnets (and they ARE bonnets this year!), its little girls with long legs and stiff white dresses and "crimpy" hair, its rolling motors in the city and shiny buggies with spinning wheels in the country, its candy-and-ice-cream Sunday school cards for little girls, and a box of sweet white flowers with a man's card on top of their dew for big girls—this last day all the Dannys are going to church!

Princess Bettina and her slaves! For it's their last GOOD day.

And so they're goin'—in their Easter Liddies and their kid gloves. And some will fall asleep, and some will faithfully kneel, and some will, mad with sitting still, look absent-minded and tickle the other fellow with a fat forefinger in his round tummy, some will whisper to the Princess trying to wake a twinkle in her grave and saintly eyes—some will pull this same one back to order by a lock of his tight-curled hair, some will look straight to Heaven under the brim of a spanking new coachman's hat and wonder if the real pearls are setting right on his proud front, some will whisper in a penetrating hiss—"Is my hat on straight?"—and a weary Danny at her elbow in a Roman sash and his hair licked flat, will yawn out, "'S straight 's it ought to be!"

Easter in Love-land—the Princess Bettina and her Dannys!—NELL BRINKLEY.

NOW where shall I seek the Eastertide this glowing Sunday morn,
Where shall I find that ancient day of hope and life reborn?
Shall I search in the Dim Cathedral, pass the churches in review,
Or shall I hunt 'mid the thronging mass that walks the avenue?

Perhaps I shall find the Easter where the purple sunlight pales,
Failing through glass-stained windows to lilied altar-rails;
It may be the heart of Easter is hid in the incense dim
Where choir-boys chant with a fluted voice the glad old Easter hymn.

Perchance I will meet the Easter on the green of our Nations' lawn,
Where children roll their rainbow eggs to greet the golden dawn.
For lo! 'tis the spirit of Easter wherever the sunlight pours
Its blessing on all He loved so well in His Own great out-of-doors.

Mary's Belief

They were speaking of the beautiful set and their kindly conversation in discussing each other a few evenings ago, when this little incident was recall ed.

One afternoon two young women were talking hats, servants, picture shows, and things like that, when one of them casually referred to a certain Mrs. Smith.

"Poor Mary!" sighfully commented the other. "She is a perfect dear, of course, but she suffers much for her belief.

"Her belief?" responded the first, questionably. "And what, pray, may that belief be?"

"She believes," was the soft, cooing rejoinder of the second, "that she can wear a number three shoe on a number six foot."

Their Married Life

WARREN FAILS TO DISTINGUISH HIMSELF IN THE NEW DANCES AT SMART SOCIETY BALL

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

THE long white and gilt ballroom was ablaze with lights. An orchestra in an overhanging balcony twanked a syncopated one-step, while the dancers swayed and gyrated over the shining wax floor.

Skirting the outer edges of the room Warren steered Helen to a line of gilt chairs against the wall.

A final crashing chord, and the music ceased. Clamorously the dancers applauded for more, and with scarcely a moment's interval the orchestra again struck up.

"Think they'd take time to get their breath. Strenuous work that," Warren nodded to a man with a wilted collar and a florid face streaked with perspiration. "Must be pretty hard on a girl's makeup."

But considering the vigorous measure of the dance Helen thought the women seemed less flushed and less disheveled than the men.

"Dear, there's some really good gowns here," scrutinizing each couple as they whirled by.

"Pretty good-looking crowd—for a public dance."

"Why, it isn't a public dance!"

"Oh, these club dances aren't so mighty exclusive. Get into any of 'em by planking down a five spot. Here come, the Daltons now."

"We've been looking everywhere for you," Mrs. Dalton dropped breathlessly into a chair beside Helen, buttering a gold-spangled fan.

"Thought we saw you come in" (Mr. Dalton was dabbing his handkerchief over his flushed face), "but lost you in the shuffle. Big crowd here tonight."

"We were just saying that," agreed Warren. "Good-looking crowd, too."

"Yes, the Adelphian Society usually turns out a pretty fair crowd. We thought you'd enjoy it."

THE WRONG GOWN

"Oh, there's the 'hesitation.'" Mrs. Dalton's white satin slipper tapped eagerly as the orchestra swung into another tune.

"You two go on," urged Warren. "You don't have to entertain us."

"Don't mean you're not going to dance?" excited Mr. Dalton.

"No, Helen and I aren't up on these new dances."

"Nonsense! Of course you'll dance."

"Well, we'll see a little later. You go on, we'll sit here and give 'em the 'once over.' Want to get a few points first."

"Why Warren, we're not going to dance at all," protested Helen, as the Daltons whirled off. "You know we can't do any of these new steps."

"Why can't we? It's all Tommy-rot about having to take a lot of lessons. Watch this—it's only an exaggerated waltz. Anybody who can dance at all can catch on to that."

Fearing that Warren might undertake to prove his assertion, Helen did not dispute it. She had not expected to dance, and had now felt most conspicuous, for all of the others were short dancing length.

She realized, too, that although this was a Paris gown, as it was neither flounced nor draped around the hips, it looked decidedly out of date.

"For the love of Mike, what's the matter with the woman's hair?"

Helen leaned forward. "Oh, that's one of those colored wigs. Pale blue, isn't it, to match her dress? How sallow it makes her!"

"She's a sight!" grimly.

There were no other colored wigs but a number of white ones, and all the head-dresses were elaborate with aigrettes and jeweled bandeaux.

"What's that girl got on—a nigh cap?"

"They wear those lace caps for dancing. Oh, do look, that's an exquisite gown!" as a girl swept by in a pearl embroidered cream chiffon.

"It's dirty," criticised Warren. "I'd have a cheaper frock and have it fresh looking. Jove, most of these gowns look worse for the wear."

"The dancing's so hard on them," explained Helen. "And I suppose this crowd goes to a dance almost every night."

A HEAVY WEIGHT.

"Pretty soiled lot of slippers, too. Say, look at that heavyweight, will you? Well, I'd can those red stockings. Looks as if she'd been committing murder in the first degree."

Helen smiled as a very stout woman pranced by with a puffed overskirt of white taffeta, splashed with red. A huge bow of red tulle was fastened butterfly fashion to her back, the ends trailing over her broad hips. With this "fetching" costume she wore red slippers, and her skirt was slashed to show her beefy, red silk-stockinged calves.

"Why; oh, WHY, do stout, florid women always dress so conspicuously?"

"Want to make sure they're not overlooked," grinned Warren. "Well, my have off on that plan for wadding her around. Jingo, that girl in pink can dance! Not bad looking either. Say, what's coming here? Looks like she'd grabbed down the curtains and grabbed off the lamp shade."

"That's supposed to be very effective," glancing at the loosely-draped gown, with a green silk hip flounce stiffly wired. "Dear, do you know I feel really old-fashioned in this? I wonder if I couldn't drape this skirt in some way?"

"Huh; if you knew what a darned sight better that dress looks than most of these freaks around here, you'd not monkey with it."

"Has anybody a pin?" Mrs. Dalton came up flushed and panting, holding in place a frill of torn lace. "Harry clutches me so," crossly, "he just ruins my clothes. He doesn't know the Maxixe at all! I have to fairly drag him around."

"You don't get it right either, Marie. You put your toe in front instead of your heel."

"I do NOT!" emphatically. "It's you that ——— Oh, thank you!" as Warren found a pin under his coat lapel. "You're going to dance this with me. I'm sure you can get it better than Harry."

"Go ahead, Curtis," urged Mr. Dalton. "I'd like to see some one else raked over the coals."

WARREN GOES.

"Oh, dear, I wouldn't," whispered Helen, "you don't know these steps."

But Warren with a gallant bow had already placed his arm around Mrs. Dalton's waist. The next moment they were lost in the maze of dancers.

Refusing Mr. Dalton's insistent invitation to dance, Helen tried anxiously to locate Warren in that kaleidoscopic mass.

Then she saw them across the room. Warren, much flushed, was making different efforts to conform the old-fashioned waltz to this new step. They were mincing along painstakingly awkward, and Helen saw several persons glance after them with a meaning smile.

It was so purely that she ever saw Warren at a disadvantage that she watched him with varied emotions. Oh, why did he not stop? Why did he persist in making a spectacle of himself? Every moment his steps grew more conflicting. Mrs. Dalton was plainly embarrassed.

They were coming nearer. Surely he would stop when he reached their table! But obstinately determined, he would have again circled the room and not Mrs. Dalton broken away with an apologetic laugh.

"It's the orchestra—they're all out of time! It's so hard to dance to some of this music."

Warren caught at the excuse. "Thought something was wrong! They're way off! No wonder I couldn't get the swing of it. Should think they'd have a decent orchestra at a dance like this."

As soon as Mrs. Dalton got her breath she whirled off again with her husband. Warren sank into the chair beside Helen. There was an awkward silence. She purposely refrained from any comments on his dancing.

"Well, this is dead slow. I'm going downstairs and have a game of pool with the marker. You'll be all right here—plenty to see."

With Warren beside her she had enjoyed looking on, but, now left alone, Helen felt very conspicuous. It recalled her "wall-flower" days as a young girl. Not having the dash and assurance to make her popular, she had sat out many dances, trying to hide her embarrassment and aching heart with a poorly feigned air of unconcern.

SHE IS TIMID

And now as several men glanced appraisingly at her, Helen grew more self-conscious. If only she could escape to the lounging room! She shrank from crossing the floor alone, but by keeping close to the wall and dodging many couples she finally made her way out.

Feeling much less conspicuous out there, Helen sank on one of the red velvet couches, from which she still had a view of the ballroom.

A half-hour later Warren appeared, leisurely smoking a cigar.

"Had enough? All right, let's look up the Daltons and tell them what a 'pleasant evening' we've had," sarcastically.

"Dear, it isn't their fault; they thought we'd enjoy it."

"Well, we might—if there'd been a decent waltz or two. Instead of all these St. Vitus steps. But come on," dragging Helen toward the ballroom, "we'll show 'em we're not such dead ones! Mrs. Dalton was about as graceful as a cow, but you and I can do these stunts."

"Oh, no—no," Helen drew back panic-stricken. Then hopefully, "Dear, everybody's taking lessons — why shouldn't we? I think I'd love these new dances, if I only knew them."

"Lessons!" with a snort. "Well, it'll be a long while before I shell out my good money to any of those counter jumpers for their freak dancing lessons!"

"Counter jumpers?"

"Ribbon counter clerks—that's what most of 'em were six months ago. Now they're giving dancing lessons to a lot of nincompoops at ten dollars per!"

Do You Know That—

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company have constructed nearly a thousand miles of main and branch lines during the last twelve months. This would not have been possible had not track-laying machines been brought into requisition. One of these track-layers has put down five and a half miles of steel in a single day.

The Rev. Samuel Harding of the Portman United Free Mission, Glasgow, has just celebrated his diamond jubilee. He states that he has never been laid up for a single day with illness, that he has never had a doctor attending him, and has never taken medicine of any kind, and, moreover, he has never had the toothache.

The Rev. Carl Reiland, rector of the fashionable St. George's Episcopal Church, New York, has established a barber's shop for the choir in the vestry. The "shop" is open free to the "boys" on Saturday mornings and Sundays before services.

An Easter Vision

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

My soul beheld a vision of the Master:
Methought He stood with grieved and questioning eyes,
Where Freedom drove its chariot to disaster
And toilers heard, unheeding, toilers' cries.
Where man withheld God's bounties from his neighbor,
And fertile fields were sterilized by greed,
Where Labor's hand was lifted against labor,
And suffering serfs, to despots turned, when freed.

◆◆◆ ◆◆◆ ◆◆◆ ◆◆◆

Majestic rose tall steeple after steeple;
Imperious bells called worshippers to prayer;
But as they passed, the faces of the people
Were marred by envy, anger and despair.
"Christ the Redeemer of the world has risen,
Peace and good will," so rang the major strain.
But forth from sweatshops, tenement and prison
Wailed minor protests, redolent with pain.

◆◆◆ ◆◆◆ ◆◆◆ ◆◆◆

Methought about the Master, all unseeing,
Fought desperate hosts of striking clan with clan,
Their primal purpose, meant for labor's freeing,
Sunk in vindictive hate of man for man.
Pretentious Wealth, in unearned robes of beauty,
Flung Want a pittance from her bulging purse,
While ill-paid Toil went on dull rounds of duty,
Hell in her heart, and on her lips a curse.

◆◆◆ ◆◆◆ ◆◆◆ ◆◆◆

Then spoke the Christ (so wondrous was my vision),
(Deep, deep, His voice, with sorrow's cadence fraught):
"This world today would be a realm elysian,
Had my disciples lived the love I taught.
Un-Christlike is the Christian creed men fashion,
Who kneel to worship, and who rise to slay.
Profane pretenders of my holy Passion,
Ye nail Me newly to the cross each day."

"Don't cry, girlie," Jack pleaded. "Has the governor been scolding you so very bad? I know he is in a rotten humor today. He was scolding you when I came in, wasn't he?"

She made no answer, but trembling from her sobs she shook her head in dissent.

"Then what are you crying about?"

"Nothing," she murmured.

"There must be something."

"Yes, there is — something — I'm afraid."

"Why can't you tell me about it, then? Are you afraid of losing your position?"

"No, not afraid of losing it—afraid of having to leave it. But don't ask me, please. Oh, I just can't give it up, my mother is so happy over it—we are all so happy"—She raised her hands in a gesture of despair. "I just can't—I can't"——

"Then why don't you tell me? What is it, Gertrude? I can help you."

"No, you can't. Nobody can help me."

"They can. I can.' His gentle tone now was a determined one. "I want you to tell me what you're crying for." He took her hand and pressed it to his lips.

"Don't, Jack," she murmured, "not now, I can't. Maybe I'll tell you by and by. You'd better leave me now. I'm all right."

They heard Scott's voice in the corridor raised in a strident pitch of command to Crane. Gertrude pulled away. "Quick," she whispered, "please go! I'll see you tonight."

Scott banged the door after his departing heir. With shrewd appreciation of her feelings he went to his desk and offered no immediate apology.

AN APOLOGY

"That boy is worse than the rest of them," he commented finally. "I don't see how I have to get him a private office."

He took a ball of crumpled paper from his pocket and smoothed it out on his desk. As he contemplated it he smiled in a guilty, shamefaced way like a child who in momentary temper had trampled on a favorite toy. He paved the way for peace-making. He smoothed the sheet again, folded it and unfolded it, and got up, holding it toward her.

"I'm sorry, little secretary, especially for this. It was such a neat little job it seems almost a sacrilege to have ruined it." He came over to her, still holding out the letter.

"Let me offer you my apologies, Gertrude. I guess you'll have to do it over, and you can do the others now. I'm going down to the club for luncheon today, and may not be back till rather late, but I wish you would wait for me."

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were weaker today, but there was more market activity than had been expected after the holiday. Share transactions in New oYrk for the two-hour session totalled about 126,000. Business was quiet at the start, but soon assumed some volume, and there was more in the last than during the first half hour of the morning. Foreign markets were closed, but there was considerable selling on this side on European orders. The report of the United States Steel Corporation for March has had a bearish effect both at home and abroad. Canadian Pacific, Steel, American Telephone and New Haven were among notably weak stocks.

Among declines in New York at the close were Canadian Pacific 1¼, Southern Pacific ⅝, Missouri Pacific ⅝, Reading, Lehigh Valley ¼, American Telephone 1⅜, American Can ⅝, Steel 1⅝, Amalgamated ⅝, American Smelting ⅝, Baltimore & Ohio ⅛ and Union Pacific ⅜. New Haven was off a point at 61, but had sold to 60¾ at the recorded bottom because of its poor showing for February.

In Boston all the Copper, Gas & Maine stocks unchanged. New Haven off ¼ and Elevated 1. Tamarack was 1¾ lower but sales were few and small. Among mines to show fractional losses were Butte & Superior, Calumet & Arizona, Calumet & Hecla, North Butte and Mohawk showed small gains. United Fruit was ½ higher and American Telephone ¼ lower.

The New York bank statement in brief was as follows: Average statement—Excess cash reserve, $13,611,750; decrease, $571,800. Loans, increase $8,666,000; specie, increase $4,889,000; legal tenders, decrease $3,216,000; net deposits, increase $5,600,000; circulation, decrease $175,600. Actual statement—Loans, decrease $10,059,000; specie, increase $4,824,000; legal tenders, decrease $3,216,000; net deposits, decrease $5,537,000; reserve, increase $8,279,450.

MOST EXCHANGES CLOSED.

Most stock exchanges were closed today, although those in New York and in Boston reopened. In Europe the London, Paris and Berlin bourses will not reopen until Tuesday morning next. The Liverpool cotton exchange will reopen until Thursday, but the one in New York will resume on Monday. So will the New York coffee exchange. A large percentage of brokers in this country did not give any attention to trading today, having gone away Thursday night for the week-end.

U. S. STEEL REPORT.

The report of the United States Steel Corporation for the unfilled tonnage at the end of March was even poorer than was expected. The decrease in unfilled business amounts to 572,615 tons. The total of orders at the end of last month was 4,655,-925 tons. This is the smallest for any March since 1911, when the figure was 3,447,391 tons. Compared with March 31, 1913, the figures show a decrease of 2,815,131 tons.

NEW HAVEN'S SHOWING.

The showing made by the New Haven system for February was poor, as was expected. It was stated by one of the directors yesterday, however, that it is expected that the whole system will show a small surplus at the end of the current fiscal year, after paying all charges.

Earnings of the companies operating show a decrease for February of $1,272,000, only a small extra fund of $200,000 last year the same properties reported a total net profit of $486,764, after paying all charges.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford income reports a decrease of $1,000,000 for February and a falling off of $4,000,000 for the year so far. For the twelve months ended February 28 there was a deficit of $4,196,000 or $6,000,000 a surplus of $4,196,000 to $10,000,000.

TOBACCO COUPONS TO GO.

There are five bills pending in Congress to prevent tobacco companies from distributing coupons which may be redeemed with gifts, and a member of the Ways and Means Committee says that some one of them will undoubtedly be passed. The first against the issuance of coupons has been made by Indepen. N dents Tobacco Company. They have been defeated in seventeen States, but the outlook is that they will win at Washington.

A Word of Warning

Hundreds of men and boys have wasted their $ in attached money to worthless automobile institutions.

Before deciding on ANY school or investing a dollar for any automobile course, call at the office of the Boston Y. M. C. A. Automobile School and learn what the only school in America that has equipped cars added in America has done for 1,500 young men and what we do for you.

We are in this work to protect your interests and make you a thoroughly competent man.

The Boss Season is just opening—don't delay another day—get busy and learn while the learning is free. Free open presentation of this ad at the office.

The Life of the Democratic Party and the People's Rights Are at Stake

It Will Not Be the Fault of Woodrow Wilson Alone if the Democratic Party Is Crushed and Gone After the Next General Election. The Responsibility Will Rest With the Senators That May Prefer Patronage to Their Duty, Their Party and the Public Interest.

The Senators of the United States, dealing as they do with the most earnest convictions of the American nation, with the most valuable asset of that nation, the right to home government without foreign interference, carry upon their shoulders a heavy load of responsibility and duty.

The recent elections in New Jersey and Massachusetts have shown the temper of the people, and that temper is shown in thousands of protests from all over the United States.

This newspaper reminds Democratic Senators and others whose mind is on patronage that three years is not a very long time, those years will soon pass.

Let the Senators think of what will happen three years from now as they act wisely or foolishly.

The success of the Democratic party at the next election, and more than that, the very life of the party is at stake, in this decision now in the hands of the Senate in regard to the free tolls law.

It is true that the Democratic party and all other political parties that the nation has ever known are less important than the fundamental principle involved, the question as to whether or not this nation has a right to attend to its own affairs, to regulate its own waterways, to make laws based upon the Monroe Doctrine, and although less important, to give to the people of the United States a just return for the spending of hundreds of millions of dollars by the people.

Far more important than the state of any Democratic Senator or Presidential candidate or the Democratic party itself is the fundamental question of North American government by a North American nation.

But Senators, thinking of patronage and their own welfare and bending to the will that distributes patronage, may heed most readily an appeal based upon their own and their party interest.

We ask them to bear these facts in mind, remembering that the existence of their party and their own political life depend upon their decision.

✣ ✣ ✣

The Democratic party can win, as in Massachusetts, if it stands for true democracy and is loyal to the Democratic platform.

But it must lose when it repudiates the party platform and betrays the confidence of the people.

The Democratic party now has an opportunity to follow Wilson to defeat or to follow the platform to victory, and, after the lesson of these elections, if the Democratic party is destroyed, it will not be Mr. Wilson who destroyed it, but the patronage-seeking Senators who refuse to heed the warning of the citizens, and prefer to sacrifice the party and the country to their greed for patronage.

The mere abandonment of Wilson at the next election will not save the party, for it will not be Wilson alone who will have betrayed his trust, but the whole Democratic organization, which has been faithless.

The outraged voters of this country will defeat, and not only defeat but destroy, the Democratic party.

And every patriotic citizen, no matter what his former party affiliations, will rejoice to see so traitorous a party finally eliminated from the politics of the nation.

✣ ✣ ✣

It is not necessary to remind the Senators and the country of the very simple nature of the question before them.

If they abide by the pledge of their party they will uphold and refuse to repeal the free tolls law for coastwise shipping to which their party platform pledged them and upon which this Democratic administration was elected.

If they are faithful to the traditions of the United States and the Monroe Doctrine, they will not permit selfish foreign interests to dictate to the people what we shall do with our own property and what we shall with our own shipping and our own waterways.

"NOBODY HOME"

THE EXEMPTION CLAUSE ISN'T IN VIOLATION OF THE TREATY— OF COURSE YOUR MONEY BUILT THE CANAL AND ITS YOUR CANAL BUT— YOUR SHIPS SHOULD PAY TOLLS THE SAME AS ALL THE OTHERS— THAT'S FAIR ENOUGH ISN'T IT?
HAW-HAW-HAW— SAMUWEL BEGENE YOU-HE ISN'T VERY SMART— NOBODY HOME
BAP

John Bull shouldn't be too previous in taking Uncle Sam for a fool. He's had two or three surprises before now.

THE PANAMA CANAL IS A PART OF THE COAST LINE OF THE UNITED STATES.

We have the same rights in that waterway as we have in New York Harbor and in the Mississippi River or in the Bay of San Francisco.

This country unselfishly has opened a great commercial pathway between the oceans, saving millions annually to foreign commercial fleets and practically nothing to the United States, which to its disgrace, is without shipping.

We are told that the United States has no right to subsidize its own ships through free tolls and give American ships an advantage.

But there is no advantage to American ships, for no foreign vessel can compete in our coastwise trade or engage in it.

It will not cost an English ship any heavier toll if our coastwise ships go through free.

It will not cost an English ship any less if our own ship is taxed.

✣ ✣ ✣

As a matter of fact, the treacherous plan to repeal the free tolls would make the American coastwise ship practically the only ship using that canal WITHOUT A SUBSIDY.

The German government subsidizes its ships heavily, and we do not protest or interfere.

The British government pays a heavy subsidy to its great mercantile marine, and we do not protest or dictate to England what she shall do.

Then after we have spent hundreds of millions to build a canal, after we have put American international shipping—the only kind that competes with foreign shipping—on an even basis with all other shipping, taxing our own international shipping as we tax that of England, we are told that we must not be permitted to use the canal that we have built in our own way.

This country has submitted to undignified, weak and anglomaniac treaty makers.

We have put our international mercantile marine, without any subsidy, on the same plane as the other international shipping—which means that we cannot hope to build up that part of our marine.

We humbly ask permission to give free use of the canal to our coastwise shipping only.

We desire that the inhabitants of the East and the West, the extreme Northwest and the extreme Northeast, and all the intervening territory shall have the benefit of cheap freights and free use of the canal.

We ask permission to use that canal as a means of limiting the extortions of the transcontinental railroads.

We are told by Great Britain and some of our own Senators and by the President of the United States that we shall not use that canal in that way, in spite of the fact that the free tolls law exists and was passed without any opposition on the part of foreign countries until Mr. Wilson's publisher was made Ambassador to England; in spite of the fact that the Democratic party and the Democratic platform, the whole people of the country and Mr. Wilson himself endorsed the free tolls idea before election.

It is a very serious thing for a nation like the United States to display pusilanimity and vacillation in international questions.

Every American, regardless of personal interest, is humiliated by the attitude of our administration in foreign affairs.

We are told that a foreign vessel shall not use our own canal except by paying toll.

And a few weeks later we are told of a treaty which will give to a Central American Republic the right to ship petroleum and coal through the canal free of charge.

Does any sane man doubt that the coal and oil interests are represented in this decision, just as the English aristocrats, with their millions invested in the Canadian-Pacific Railroad stocks, are represented in the protest against free use of the canal by American coastwise shipping?

✣ ✣ ✣

The matter must be plain in the minds of all citizens. It is perfectly plain in the mind of every Senator.

No Senator demanded the repeal of that just free tolls law until Mr. Wilson heard from his publisher, Ambassador Page, that England did not approve of our course.

Bear in mind that it is not the English government that protests. It makes no difference to England whether or not our coastwise shipping, with which England does not compete, pays tolls or goes through free.

The British are pleased, of course, to see weakness in our administration. They are delighted to believe that we are relinquishing our Monroe Doctrine and, in the words of Mr. Wilson's publisher, the Ambassador, that "we would like to enforce the Monroe Doctrine if nobody objects."

The real opposition to free tolls in England comes back from those anxious to encourage vacillation in the administration of this country, anxious to gain a foothold, a right to dictate.

Remember that those in England who now demand free tolls have the impertinence to demand also that the United States should leave that canal unfortified.

The opposition to the free tolls which Mr. Page represents is not that of the British government at all, but that of aristocrats with whom he has dined, to whose platitudes he has listened and who are large owners of Canadian-Pacific Railroad stock—the stock that fears free tolls and cheap freights from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The people of this country demand free tolls and the building up of their coastwise shipping.

They demand lower freights, some real advantage for this country for the spending of millions of dollars on the canal.

THE PEOPLE DEMAND, ABOVE ALL, FIRM DECISION AND DETERMINATION BY THE UNITED STATES TO RULE NOT ONLY ALONG OUR OWN SHORES AND THE BOUNDARIES OF THE PANAMA CANAL, BUT ON THIS ENTIRE AMERICAN CONTINENT, AND TO REFUSE ALL DICTATION.

✣ ✣ ✣

We tell the Senators who have this matter in their hands that they will either uphold the Monroe Doctrine, adhere to the pledges of the Democratic platform and legislate in accordance with the will of the people, or legislate to please American railroads, English holders of Canadian-Pacific Railroad stocks, and a few American snobs who delight to honor the King.

The Senators will do their duty, keep their pledges and refuse to submit to dictation upon this canal matter;

Or, they will cut their own throats politically and the throat of the Democratic party, and they and their party will deserve that fate if they betray the people and their own political word of honor.

THE ISSUE AND THE VERDICT

(Reprinted from Wednesday's New York American.)

The election of Drukker, Republican, in Passaic, N. J., is the direct answer to President Wilson's public letter of April 2, inviting a test as to the popular support of his Panama Canal and other policies.

The issue was made by President Wilson solely. In a letter indorsing J. J. O'Byrne for Congress, the President said:

"May I not, as the time for the election approaches, send you this line of warm indorsement?

"I hope sincerely that the people of your district will elect you to the House and in this way not only do you honor, but also show their judgment with regard to the present Administration.

"WOODROW WILSON."

The President sent three United States Senators and two leaders in the House to stump the district for his Panama and tariff policies.

Senator Ollie James, chairman of the Baltimore Convention, which nominated Wilson and adopted the plank applauding the tolls exemption platform, which he now seeks to repeal, was no less positive in explaining before the election what its significance would be. Said Mr. James:

Mr. O'Byrne is the choice of President Wilson. The eyes of the country are upon the voters of the Seventh New Jersey District. If the Democratic candidate is defeated, it will be taken as a PERSONAL INSULT TO PRESIDENT WILSON, coming, as it does, from his own State."

Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois also stumped the district, and in his last speech said:

"The real question to be decided tomorrow is whether the people want to uphold the President or give to every newspaper in the country the opportunity on Wednesday morning to say that New Jersey, the home of the President, has repudiated him at the end of fourteen months of his Administration."

Representative Covington of Maryland find charge in the House of President Wilson's Panama "Surrender bill." The President sent him to stump the Passaic district. Mr. Covington said:

"All over the United States the people have their eyes on this New Jersey district. I want you to register by your vote on Tuesday your voice that there is no break in the Democratic party support of your President in all his policies."

Representative Glass of Virginia, the able author in the House of the President's Currency bill, was also sent. Mr. Glass' final appeal to voters was:

"It is futile to appeal to you if you do not elect O'Byrne. The enemies of Wilson will call O'Byrne's defeat a condemnation of the Administration."

Democratic Candidate O'BYRNE stood frankly for Panama tolls surrender and the Wilson industrial policies. This was his sole issue.

Republican Candidate Drukker opposed Panama tolls surrender and attacked the Wilson tariff and trust policies.

The Panama policy was made a chief issue of the Socialist candidate Demarest's campaign, who was more outspoken than the Republican candidate in attacking Mr. Wilson's tolls repeal bill.

How the Passaic, N. J., district voted in previous elections for Congress:

1902—Democratic plurality ..3,848	1908—Democratic plurality ... 837
1904—Republican plurality .. 516	(Boundaries of district changed after this election.)
(Roosevelt tidal wave.)	1910—Democratic plurality ..4,357
1906—Democratic plurality ...2,163	1912—Democratic plurality ..3,324
1914—Republican Plurality 5,380
